MEDIATION ROLE NOT TAKEN UP, PRESIDENT SAYS

Executive Busy Drafting Vital Address To Be Delivered Friday

"SENSATION" IS HINTED

Rumors Continue That Move For Peace May Be Made With Vatican

WASHINGTON, May 9—President Roosevelt's role in any new endeavor to bring peace in Europe remained a mystery today after the White House officially denied a report that a presidential mediation offer has been made to Italy and rejected by Premier Mussolini.

The President, after taking time out to declare tersely that a Rome report, detailing his asserted peace offer and its rejection, "is completely erroneous," continued work on the address that he is scheduled to deliver to representatives of all the American nations tomorrow night.

The address, to be given before the eighth American Scientific Congress, was expected by official and diplomatic circles to be of major importance. This expectation was based on several developments of the last few days, notably:

1. The unusual amount of time that Mr. Roosevelt is devoting to preparation of the address.

2. Cancellation of the President's regular Tuesday press conference to permit him to continue work on the address.

3. Repeated conferences with Secretary of State Hull, Under Secretary Welles and Assistant Secretary Berle, as he drafted the address.

May Act With Vatican

Despite Mr. Roosevelt's throwdown of the Rome report, many responsible Washington diplomatic observers were convinced that the President is charting a sensational course. They cite the order holding the U. S. fleet in the Pacific, apparently to discourage seizure by Japan of the Netherlands East Indies in case Holland is invaded, and the persistently recurring rumors that Mr. Roosevelt may move for peace in conjunction with the Vatican.

MAN BEING SUED FOR DIVORCE SAYS WIFE'S ALIMONY NOT ENOUGH

CAMDEN, N. J., May 9—"I don't think that's enough," objected Francis H. King in Camden Chancery Court when Advisory Master William B. Knight awarded his wife $15 a week for maintenance of herself and two children.

"How's that?" asked Knight incredulously.

"I don't see how she and the children could possibly get along on that," replied King, whose wife, Ruth, is seeking a divorce on grounds of cruelty. "I make $58 a week and would be glad to pay $20, and more when she needs it."

"There's a lot of good in him," sobbed Mrs. King, "if he'd only leave drink alone."

Refusing to change his original order, Knight suggested that King could make larger payments whenever he pleased and advised the couple to try to effect a reconciliation today.

HIGH TRIBUNAL HITS 'NUMBERS'

Supreme Court Says That Receipts Are Enough For Conviction

COLUMBUS, May 9—Municipalities waging warfare against the "numbers" racket received an effective new weapon today from the State Supreme Court.

The high court upheld the constitutionality of a Canton anti-gambling ordinance which decrees that the mere possession of "numbers" receipts is a presumption of guilt.

The ordinance was assailed before the Supreme Court by one George Washington whose conviction following his arrest a year ago was upheld by the Stark County courts. The Supreme Court overruled a motion to review.

Police Chief Ira Manderbaugh inspired the unusual Canton ordinance, contending that without it his men labored under a serious handicap because they were required to be present when money changed hands to clinch "numbers" charges.

Passage of similar ordinances by a number of Ohio cities to cope with the "numbers" racket was anticipated now that the supreme court inferentially has upheld their right to do so.

WORKS PROJECT MEASURE GIVEN COMMITTEE NOD

WASHINGTON, May 9—President Roosevelt's proposal to appropriate $985,000,000 to run the Work Projects Administration for eight months today won the approval of the powerful house appropriations deficiency subcommittee.

The plan would continue operation of WPA on its present annual basis from July 1 until next March 1, when congress would be confronted with necessity of making a deficit appropriation.

The new relief bill, which is expected to total $1,134,000,000 and carry funds for the Farm Security Administration, Puerto Rico Relief Commission and other allied agencies, is slated to be reported to the house next Thursday.

DIPHTHERIA DEATHS IN NATION SHOW DECREASE

CHICAGO, May 9 — A further reduction of the nation's diphtheria deaths during 1939 was reported today by the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In 93 large cities, diphtheria mortalities fell from 483 in 1938 to 323 in 1939, for a rate of 0.82 deaths per 100,000 of population last year against a rate of 1.23 the year before.

"The evidence continues to indicate that the protection programs so extensively maintained are resulting in a very definite lower death rate from diphtheria," the Journal commented.

He was one of the organizers and conductors of the famous Wittich Band, which gained prominence throughout the Middlewest.

Followed Father's Trade

Mr. Wittich's trade was that of a confectioner in which business he followed his father, the late G. F. Wittich, who came to Circleville by canal boat in 1836. The Wittich family operated a confectionery at 108 West Main Street for many years, being located in the same room from 1857 until a few years ago when Mr. Wittich retired from business. Fred Wittich, one of the deceased's two surviving sons, operates a confectionery at present at an East Main Street location, carrying on the family name in this business.

Fraternally, Mr. Wittich was affiliated with the Elks Lodge, being one of Circleville Lodge No. 77's few remaining charter members, the organization being chartered over 50 years ago. Mr. Wittich was the proud owner of an honorary life membership in the lodge, presented a few years ago to all charter members.

He was born in Circleville February 16, 1857, a son of G. F. and Henrietta Keffer Wittich. His wife, Lois H. Jones Wittich, whom he married April 20, 1882, preceded him in death.

Survivors include two sons, Fred and Loring, both of Circleville; two sisters, Mrs. S. C. Gamble and Mrs. E. A. Mearns, and a brother, Frank, all of Circleville. He was one of nine children.

Miss Mary Rosealpha Alspaugh, 55, was found dead at her home, 150 Scioto Street, Ashville, Thursday at 9:30 a. m. by Miss Lulu Garner, a neighbor. Miss Alspaugh had seated herself at the breakfast table when she died.

F. D. LOSES LESS THAN 1,000 VOTES IN PHILLY

PHILADELPHIA, May 9 — President Roosevelt polled only about 900 fewer votes in the recent primary in Philadelphia than he did four years ago, official election figures revealed today.

This year the President received 155,135 votes while in 1936 he was given approximately 156,000. On the Republican side, Thomas E. Dewey polled 807 Philadelphia write-in votes, compared with 233 for Gov. Arthur H. James and 101 for Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Minister's Foe

DECLARING he was not satisfied "that the present war cabinet is an efficient instrument for conducting the war," Major Clement R. Atlee, above, leader of the powerful British Labor party, headed the opposition in the House of Commons to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain after the prime minister had appeared before Parliament to defend his cabinet's conduct of the war.

BRITISH PRESS ASKS CHANGES

Daily Mail Suggests That Lloyd George Be Named New Minister

LONDON, May 9—British newspapers sent up their heaviest rhetorical shells today in a massed assault against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain following his narrow escape from defeat in the House of Commons.

The London Daily Mail said the Chamberlain Government "must" go and urged choice of David Lloyd George, World War Prime Minister as Chamberlain's successor.

The News Chronicle commented: "The really significant thing revealed by the debate is that the Chamberlain government no longer commands the confidence of either Parliament or the country."

And the Laborite Daily Herald said:

"Parliament has dismissed the premier, morally and politically."

The Manchester Guardian, famed Liberal organ, commented bitterly on the results of the House of Commons vote of confidence: "The result of the debate goes forth to the world as an apparent victory for the government, when everybody knows it is nothing of the kind."

The Daily Telegraph and the Times of London also called for government changes.

Prime Minister Retains Office By Tiny Margin

"Technical Resignation" May Be Offered; Slim Majority Of 81 Votes Protects Job For Much-Assailed Executive

LONDON SEES THREE ALTERNATIVES

Gravity Of Situation Shown When Stroll In Park Is Eliminated For Conference With Halifax; Opposition Bitter

LONDON, May 9—Undismayed by his narrow escape from defeat on a Laborite motion of non-confidence, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today decided to remain in office if possible at the head of a reconstituted British war cabinet.

He may submit a "technical resignation," it was learned, but this will be predicated on his own continuance as prime minister.

The action he anticipates will enable widespread reconstruction of his cabinet in such a manner as to meet the opposition to his war policies, which manifested itself in such a striking manner last night when the House of Commons voted confidence in his ministry by the comparatively slim margin of 81 ballots.

The powerful so-called Conservative committee of 1922, foundationstone of Chamberlain's party, was understood to have advised him to retain the premiership, but to reconstruct his cabinet in its entirety.

The committee's decision was taken as the result of a recent private assurance from Chamberlain that he was willing to make cabinet changes.

Minister to Keep Post

Early this afternoon, with the country still digesting yesterday's bitter debate in the House, with particular and somewhat belated attention to Winston Churchill's strong argument in behalf of the government policies, the situation stood as follows:

1—Chamberlain firmly intends to remain in office if he can.

2—Members of the Laborite opposition have accepted the ten-day Whitsuntide adjournment, believing that this will offer the best opportunity for behind-the-scenes consultations.

3—Neither the Labor Party nor David Lloyd George are willing to accept office in the cabinet while Chamberlain remains at the helm.

Chamberlain's "technical resignation" means that he will formally tender his seals of office to King George VI but that the latter —as is common practise in France and elsewhere on the continent—

King Calls Many Men To Service

All Between Ages Of 19 And 36 Asked To Register For Armed Duty

LONDON, May 9—In the presence of the privy council at Buckingham Palace, King George VI today signed a proclamation calling up for military service all males from 19 to 36 years old.

The measure, designed to increase Britain's fighting strength and vastly reinforce the armed forces, affects all who today have reached the age of 19 but are not yet 37; in other words, all born between May 10, 1903 and May 9, 1921.

It was estimated the proclamation will extend liability for service to more than 2,500,000 in the eight new age groups involved.

They will be called up for registration in successive age groups in an ascending scale, as heretofore, and no one will be called on to register until reaching the age of 20.

Twenty-eight-year-old men will be called on to register in June, and registrations will then proceed progressively to 36-year-old men in February when another royal proclamation is expected unless circumstances meanwhile necessitate a speed-up.

It was estimated—taking reserved occupations exempt from military service into account—that Britain will have 4,500,000 men under arms by Next February.

ANOTHER BRITISH SHIP SENT DOWN, GERMANS CLAIM

BERLIN, May 9—A direct bomb hit which sank an Allied transport vessel off the northern Norwegian port of Narvik was claimed by the German high command today.

A German war communique also said another British submarine had been sunk in the Skagerrak.

"German combat planes attacked enemy naval forces off Narvik and sank a 7,000-ton transport vessel with a bomb of medium calibre," the communique said.

"They also sank a British submarine in the Skagerrak.

"North of Narvik combat planes repeatedly attacked and bombed marching columns and enemy batteries.

"There were no particular events on the Western Front."

Many Township Areas List Population Losses

Gains in population in some districts of Pickaway County and losses in others were revealed Thursday by James H. Mattox, district census supervisor, whose offices are in Chillicothe. Wayne Township gained, while Muhlenberg lost a few residents. Harrison Township's population showed a considerable drop, and so did Saltcreek Township.

Scioto Township, where the state institution for the feeble-minded is located, showed a marked increase in population, but without the gain at the Orient farm, which is counted in Pickaway County's population, that district, too, would have lost in the number of its inhabitants.

Figures announced by Mr. Mattox include:

Saltcreek Township including Tarlton had 1,153 residents in 1940, a decrease from 1930's 1,191. Tarlton lost four residents during the decade, dropping from 278 to 274.

Harrison Township, including Ashville and South Bloomfield, totalled 2,241 in 1940 compared with 2,377 in 1930. Ashville's 1940 figure was quoted at 1,100, 15 over the 1,085 of 10 years ago. South Bloomfield gained three residents, moving up from 235 to 238.

Muhlenberg Township dropped four residents, the 1940 recording being 659 compared with 663 in 1930, while Darbyville took on 34 residents going from 222 in 1930 to 256 in 1940.

Wayne Township's increase was from 587 to 646.

The Scioto Township total is 4,464, this figure being 243 ahead of 1930. Commercial Point dropped from 211 in 1930 to 207 in 1940. The Orient institution population in 1930 was 2,650 and in 1940 the census showed 2,980 persons there.

Miss Mary Rosealpha Alspaugh, 55, was found dead at her home, 150 Scioto Street, Ashville, Thursday at 9:30 a. m. by Miss Lulu Garner, a neighbor. Miss Alspaugh had seated herself at the breakfast table when she died.

She was a native of Madison Township and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Alspaugh.

Minister's Foe

DECLARING he was not satisfied "that the present war cabinet is an efficient instrument for conducting the war," Major Clement R. Atlee, above, leader of the powerful British Labor party, headed the opposition in the House of Commons to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain after the prime minister had appeared before Parliament to defend his cabinet's conduct of the war.

BRITISH PRESS ASKS CHANGES

Daily Mail Suggests That Lloyd George Be Named New Minister

LONDON, May 9—British newspapers sent up their heaviest rhetorical shells today in a massed assault against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain following his narrow escape from defeat in the House of Commons.

The London Daily Mail said the Chamberlain Government "must" go and urged choice of David Lloyd George, World War Prime Minister as Chamberlain's successor.

The News Chronicle commented: "The really significant thing revealed by the debate is that the Chamberlain government no longer commands the confidence of either Parliament or the country."

And the Laborite Daily Herald said:

"Parliament has dismissed the premier, morally and politically."

The Manchester Guardian, famed Liberal organ, commented bitterly on the results of the House of Commons vote of confidence: "The result of the debate goes forth to the world as an apparent victory for the government, when everybody knows it is nothing of the kind."

The Daily Telegraph and the Times of London also called for government changes.

Prime Minister Retains Office By Tiny Margin

"Technical Resignation" May Be Offered; Slim Majority Of 81 Votes Protects Job For Much-Assailed Executive

LONDON SEES THREE ALTERNATIVES

Gravity Of Situation Shown When Stroll In Park Is Eliminated For Conference With Halifax; Opposition Bitter

LONDON, May 9—Undismayed by his narrow escape from defeat on a Laborite motion of non-confidence, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today decided to remain in office if possible at the head of a reconstituted British war cabinet.

He may submit a "technical resignation," it was learned, but this will be predicated on his own continuance as prime minister.

The action he anticipates will enable widespread reconstruction of his cabinet in such a manner as to meet the opposition to his war policies, which manifested itself in such a striking manner last night when the House of Commons voted confidence in his ministry by the comparatively slim margin of 81 ballots.

The powerful so-called Conservative committee of 1922, foundationstone of Chamberlain's party, was understood to have advised him to retain the premiership, but to reconstruct his cabinet in its entirety.

The committee's decision was taken as the result of a recent private assurance from Chamberlain that he was willing to make cabinet changes.

Minister to Keep Post

Early this afternoon, with the country still digesting yesterday's bitter debate in the House, with particular and somewhat belated attention to Winston Churchill's strong argument in behalf of the government policies, the situation stood as follows:

1—Chamberlain firmly intends to remain in office if he can.

2—Members of the Laborite opposition have accepted the ten-day Whitsuntide adjournment, believing that this will offer the best opportunity for behind-the-scenes consultations.

3—Neither the Labor Party nor David Lloyd George are willing to accept office in the cabinet while Chamberlain remains at the helm.

Chamberlain's "technical resignation" means that he will formally tender his seals of office to King George VI but that the latter —as is common practise in France and elsewhere on the continent—

King Calls Many Men To Service

All Between Ages Of 19 And 36 Asked To Register For Armed Duty

LONDON, May 9—In the presence of the privy council at Buckingham Palace, King George VI today signed a proclamation calling up for military service all males from 19 to 36 years old.

The measure, designed to increase Britain's fighting strength and vastly reinforce the armed forces, affects all who today have reached the age of 19 but are not yet 37; in other words, all born between May 10, 1903 and May 9, 1921.

It was estimated the proclamation will extend liability for service to more than 2,500,000 in the eight new age groups involved.

They will be called up for registration in successive age groups in an ascending scale, as heretofore, and no one will be called on to register until reaching the age of 20.

Twenty-eight-year-old men will be called on to register in June, and registrations will then proceed progressively to 36-year-old men in February when another royal proclamation is expected unless circumstances meanwhile necessitate a speed-up.

It was estimated—taking reserved occupations exempt from military service into account—that Britain will have 4,500,000 men under arms by Next February.

Many Township Areas List Population Losses

Gains in population in some districts of Pickaway County and losses in others were revealed Thursday by James H. Mattox, district census supervisor, whose offices are in Chillicothe. Wayne Township gained, while Muhlenberg lost a few residents. Harrison Township's population showed a considerable drop, and so did Saltcreek Township.

Scioto Township, where the state institution for the feeble-minded is located, showed a marked increase in population, but without the gain at the Orient farm, which is counted in Pickaway County's population, that district, too, would have lost in the number of its inhabitants.

Figures announced by Mr. Mattox include:

Saltcreek Township including Tarlton had 1,153 residents in 1940, a decrease from 1930's 1,191. Tarlton lost four residents during the decade, dropping from 278 to 274.

Harrison Township, including Ashville and South Bloomfield, totalled 2,241 in 1940 compared with 2,377 in 1930. Ashville's 1940 figure was quoted at 1,100, 15 over the 1,085 of 10 years ago. South Bloomfield gained three residents, moving up from 235 to 238.

Muhlenberg Township dropped four residents, the 1940 recording being 659 compared with 663 in 1930, while Darbyville took on 34 residents going from 222 in 1930 to 256 in 1940.

Wayne Township's increase was from 587 to 646.

The Scioto Township total is 4,464, this figure being 243 ahead of 1930. Commercial Point dropped from 211 in 1930 to 207 in 1940. The Orient institution population in 1930 was 2,650 and in 1940 the census showed 2,980 persons there.

ANOTHER BRITISH SHIP SENT DOWN, GERMANS CLAIM

BERLIN, May 9—A direct bomb hit which sank an Allied transport vessel off the northern Norwegian port of Narvik was claimed by the German high command today.

A German war communique also said another British submarine had been sunk in the Skagerrak.

"German combat planes attacked enemy naval forces off Narvik and sank a 7,000-ton transport vessel with a bomb of medium calibre," the communique said.

"They also sank a British submarine in the Skagerrak.

"North of Narvik combat planes repeatedly attacked and bombed marching columns and enemy batteries.

"There were no particular events on the Western Front."

COUNTY SCHOOL COST PER PUPIL ABOVE AVERAGE

Dr. T. C. Holy Finds That Pickaway Spent $101.69 For Each In 1938-39

STATE MEDIAN $86.23

Numerous Other Figures Disclosed In State Investigation

Current expenses of Pickaway County schools during 1938-39 were $101.69 a pupil in average day's attendance, a survey made by Dr. Thomas C. Holy, bureau of educational research, Ohio State University, and released from the office of George McDowell, county superintendent Thursday, revealed.

In total current expenses, Pickaway County ranks eighth in the state. Crawford County has the highest current expense with $122.41, and Lawrence County has the lowest with $66.97. The average total current expenses was $86.23.

In total cost per pupil transported, Pickaway County ranked 55th in the state with $22.66.

The figures also revealed that in Pickaway County schools 2.4 percent of the total current expense per pupil in average day's attendance, of $2.44, went for general control, 57.9 percent of the total or $58.83 went for instruction, 11 percent or $11.21 for plant operation, 19.8 percent or $20.17 for auxiliary agencies, and 6.2 percent or $6.33 for fixed charges.

Dr. Holy found the tax valuation per pupil in Pickaway County schools to be $10,208, considerably above the average of the state which was $6,598. The average tax valuation per pupil in Ohio city districts was $9,800 and in the exempted village districts, $5,536.

BOOK TRUCK OF LIBRARY TO ADD STOP AT 'HOME'

Starting Wednesday, May 15, the Public Library Book Truck will stop regularly at the Pickaway County Children's Home. Dan Pfoutz, librarian, announced Thursday that free library service will be extended to all children.

The Monday Club, cooperating with the library, has assumed responsibility for any lost or damaged books. In the past, with no one to take this responsibility, only a few of the children who attended Washington Township School had been able to borrow library books.

Mr. Pfoutz explained that all patrons of the library or the bookmobile may have books charged out for two weeks. If the borrower wishes, books may be renewed once. The only formality is signing a registration card. Books may be borrowed the same day.

Any resident of Pickaway County is eligible to make free use of the library. For any one living outside of the county a $1 a year nonresident fee is required.

Readers are urged to make use of the Public Library. If county residents find it inconvenient to meet the bookmobile, they are always welcome at the library.

"The Library is yours—use it," Mr. Pfoutz said.

Library's Book Menders Often Patch Up the Plot

"Just as she coolly slipped the smoking revolver from his nerveless grasp and whispered.....And so Jim Hogan learned who the murderer was."

Did you ever turn to page 190 to learn what it was she whispered, only to find that there were four pages missing, and that every one knew the thrilling details except the gentle reader?

If you never had that experience in turning the pages of a library book, it may be because Miss Wilmina Phebus who supervises binding and repairing at the Public Library has been there first with her typewriter and supplied the missing pages.

It is part of the work of the mending department of the Public Library, and one of the most interesting.

"I try to make them look as nearly like the original as possible," said Miss Phebus, "The paper is cut the same shape. If there are extra fly leaves, we use them for missing pages. I mark the width of the margins and the depth of paragraph indentions to make them as nearly like the pages that are gone as possible."

"When books have to be rebound we stitch the pages in their proper places. When they don't have to be rebound they are pasted in."

"Occasionally only a few words are missing," she continued to explain, "and then they are neatly printed on the paper patch that is used to repair the hole or tear."

Miss Phebus blames the quality of paper put into many books for the fact that pages become loose.

"See how soft and spongy this paper is," she said, picking up a popular novel.

"The threads that sew the pages together soon work through and then the leaves slip out.

"These books are made to be read once or twice and then laid away. But they must stand better service than that in a library."

A force of three persons is kept constantly busy mending wornout books in the Public Library.

COLLINS ON CAVALCADE PROGRAM

With democracy challenged on all fronts, the story of Roger Williams, the man who established the first pure democracy in the New World more than 150 years before the Constitution of the United States was adopted, is especinally timely. As the founder of Providence, R. I., in 1636, Roger Williams gave to the New World the first working model of a pure democracy, together with a concept of religious freedom, which was to be incorporated in the Constitution in 1789. This story of the outcast preacher whose "radical" views caused his exile from Massachusetts Bay Colony will be presented by the Cavalcade of America on Tuesday evening, May 14, with the well-known radio actor, Ray Collins, in the title role.

Mr. Pfoutz explained that all patrons of the library or the bookmobile may have books charged out for two weeks. If the borrower wishes, books may be renewed once. The only formality is signing a registration card. Books may be borrowed the same day.

Any resident of Pickaway County is eligible to make free use of the library. For any one living outside of the county a $1 a year nonresident fee is required.

Readers are urged to make use of the Public Library. If county residents find it inconvenient to meet the bookmobile, they are always welcome at the library.

"The Library is yours—use it," Mr. Pfoutz said.

COLLINS ON CAVALCADE PROGRAM

With democracy challenged on all fronts, the story of Roger Williams, the man who established the first pure democracy in the New World more than 150 years before the Constitution of the United States was adopted, is especinally timely. As the founder of Providence, R. I., in 1636, Roger Williams gave to the New World the first working model of a pure democracy, together with a concept of religious freedom, which was to be incorporated in the Constitution in 1789. This story of the outcast preacher whose "radical" views caused his exile from Massachusetts Bay Colony will be presented by the Cavalcade of America on Tuesday evening, May 14, with the well-known radio actor, Ray Collins, in the title role.

RADIO BRIEFS

Burns and Allen have definitely set June 26 as the final broadcast of the current series. They will vacation for the summer and return for the same sponsor early in the fall.

Ona Munson, "Big Town" "Lorelei", is collaborating with Meyer Levin on a book titled "Why Belle Wattling?" Since appearing as that character in "Gone With the Wind", Miss Munson has received hundreds of letters suggesting that she write her personal reaction to the part.

Patricia Ellis, popular motion picture star makes a two week guest appearance on "It Happened In Hollywood" beginning Monday, May 13. She will be the third guest since the show changed its policy some weeks ago.

The general employees of CBS voted that Mrs. Tyrone Power, Sr., mother of the 20th Century Fox star, represented the typical mother in Hollywood. The result was that Linda Ware, currently appearing as guest star on "It Happened in Hollywood" invited Mrs. Power to be "her" guest on that show Friday May 10. The entire broadcast will be dedicated to "Mother's Day."

FORMER VILLAGE RESIDENT ENDS LIFE WITH CORD

Taylor A. Miller, 49, Father Of Eight, Found Hanging In Cellar Way

ONCE LIVED IN ASHVILLE

Circleville Youth, Calling At Home, Makes Discovery Wednesday Eve

Despondency over ill health was blamed Thursday for the suicide Wednesday of Taylor A. Miller, 49, at his home, 329 Miller Avenue, Columbus. Mr. Miller was widely known in the Ashville community where he had barbered for many years until four years ago when he and his family removed to Columbus.

Mr. Miller ended his life by hanging in a cellar stairway while members of his family were at the supper table waiting for him to join them.

He was found by John Jenkins, East Mound Street, Circleville, a friend of Miller's daughter, Maribelle, when he went to the cellar to call the barber to supper. The former Ashville resident was hanging with the feet just grazing one of the stair steps. Jenkins used a butcher knife to cut the piece of heavy cord that had been fastened to a hook in the stairway, lowering the body.

Members of the Columbus fire department inhalator crew said he had been dead only about 10 minutes, but their efforts to resuscitate him failed.

Coroner Edward E. Smith of Franklin County returned a verdict of suicide by strangulation.

Besides his widow, Mrs. Helen Miller, Mr. Miller is survived by eight children, Maribelle, Richard, Taylor, Jr., Charlotte, Patricia, Betty and Donald, all at home, and a married daughter, Mrs. Ruth Barnett. His mother, Mrs. John Miller, and three brothers, Roy, William and James, survive in the Ashville community.

Our Sales are Swell— and so are the deals your Buick dealer is making!

What to do when the bug bites you!

FIGURES show that about one out of every five able-to-purchase new-car buyers really wants a Buick more than any other car.

Not all will buy one.

Too many of them without even getting actual figures will shake their heads and sigh, "Nope! A car that big and handsome must be out of my reach!"

You'll be smarter than that, we know.

When the bug to own a Buick bites you, you'll figure that a car as talked-about as Buick must be looked at first—if you're going to have anything to go on in judging 1940 values.

You'll realize it doesn't cost a cent to find out how one feels under your own hand and what the delivered prices are.

So you'll walk in, please, to the nearest Buick dealer and boldly say:

"Let me have a good look at that car that's showing the rest of 'em what modern style is.

"Let me try out that big straight-eight engine that's electrically balanced after assembly for smoothness to match a wrist watch's works.

"Show me those big soft coil springs you talk about and how they smooth out that rough stretch down the street — and what's the business about recoil-mounted Knee-Action, heaviest frames at the price, five-foot front seat room in SUPER models, and six dozen new 1940 features?"

Buick prices begin at $895* for Business Coupe (illustrated)

When you've got the answers through a good long ride—ask one more question: "How much?"

Current prices† start at $895 *for the business coupe, delivered at Flint, Mich. To this add transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), and optional equipment and accessories—though there will be few such "extras" you'll need.

That totals up to low delivered prices that are often only a few dimes more a day than on cars in the lowest-price class—so why hesitate or haggle?

When the bug bites you, get the facts—and you'll get a Buick and be happy!

†Prices subject to change without notice.

"Best buy's Buick!"

Our Sales are Swell—and so are the deals your Buick dealer is making!

What to do when the bug bites you!

FIGURES show that about one out of every five able-to-purchase new-car buyers really wants a Buick more than any other car.

Not all will buy one.

Too many of them without even getting actual figures will shake their heads and sigh, "Nope! A car that big and handsome must be out of my reach!"

You'll be smarter than that, we know.

When the bug to own a Buick bites you, you'll figure that a car as talked-about as Buick must be looked at first—if you're going to have anything to go on in judging 1940 values.

You'll realize it doesn't cost a cent to find out how one feels under your own hand and what the delivered prices are.

So you'll walk in, please, to the nearest Buick dealer and boldly say:

"Let me have a good look at that car that's showing the rest of 'em what modern style is.

"Let me try out that big straight-eight engine that's electrically balanced after assembly for smoothness to match a wrist watch's works.

"Show me those big soft coil springs you talk about and how they smooth out that rough stretch down the street — and what's the business about recoil-mounted Knee-Action, heaviest frames at the price, five-foot front seat room in SUPER models, and six dozen new 1940 features?"

Buick prices begin at $895★ for Business Coupe (illustrated)

When you've got the answers through a good long ride—ask one more question: "How much?"

Current prices† start at $895 ★for the business coupe, delivered at Flint, Mich. To this add transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), and optional equipment and accessories—though there will be few such "extras" you'll need.

That totals up to low delivered prices that are often only a few dimes more a day than on cars in the lowest-price class—so why hesitate or haggle?

When the bug bites you, get the facts—and you'll get a Buick and be happy!

†Prices subject to change without notice.

"Best buy's Buick!"

BRITAIN WARNS NAZI AGAINST AERIAL WARFARE

Swift, Devastating Attacks On German Cities To Follow Violation

BERLIN TRIPS CLAIMED

Royal Air Force Goes Over Reich Capital Seven Times, Claim

LONDON, May 9—Great Britain has warned Germany in the most unmistakable terms that retaliation will be swift, certain and devastating if Germany unlooses the terror of aerial warfare on English cities.

"Bomb London and Berlin will be bombed; drop a single bomb on Birmingham or Manchester and your own industrial center will be blasted to pieces!"

Such is the stern British warning. It has been couched in no carefully phrased diplomatic note but in the roar of twin-engined bombers of the R. A. F. during a series of the war's most daring long distance reconnaissance flights.

In nearly 70 separate flights, R. A. F. bombers have flown from England and France deep into German territory, over Berlin, Prague, Vienna and dozens of other German cities, dropping leaflets instead of bombs as a grim reminder to Cahncellor Hitler that his alone is not the power to wage a war of destruction from the air.

London Not Reached

Despite German claims to the contrary, the Air Ministry vehemently insists that not a single German plane has managed to reach London since the war began last September.

One German plane which approached the London area over the Thames estuary on November 22 was shot down by anti-aircraft fire. Others have reached the lower part of the estuary but have been unable to penetrate to London, the Air Ministry claims.

Up to the latter part of March, R. A. F. bombers had made seven night flights over Berlin, according to Air Ministry records.

The first flight was made as early as October 2, a second on October 24-25, then successively on the nights of February 25-26, 27-28-29, March 1, March 1-2, 2-3.

Other Cities Reached

Other fights through the long winter nights have carried British bombing planes over cities of Austria, Bohemia, the Kiel Canal, Wilhelmshaven and even into Poland.

The results of the fights from a defensive standpoint have been remarkable. Out of the scores of planes participating only four aircraft have been lost. One of these was forced down in Belgium by engine trouble, two were shot down over the strongly fortified Heligoland Bight, and another was forced to land in the North Sea by bad weather.

Against these small losses the Air Ministry claims that in all the raids of the winter months by the Germans on coastal shipping and naval objectives, with exception of the night raid on Scapa Flow, the German losses have been 50 percent of the planes participating.

43 Nazi Planes Downed

Forty-three known German planes in these raids have been shot down. Nine others were so badly damaged that it is believed they never reached Germany safely again in the long flight back over the North Sea.

To date, the Air Ministry asserts not a single British fighter has been shot down by German raiders over British territory, while British bombers have accounted for 30 German fighters in the 70 R. A. F. raids over Germany.

From the results of the British flights over Berlin and other German cities, air authorities here believe there is still considerable hope that the fearsome specter of bombing raids by waves of planes on civilian cities will not materialize in the present war. Retaliation, they insist, is too certain.

Stalemate Situation

It is one thing, they declare, for a major power to use a huge air fleet on a small country which has virtually no air arm, as Germany did in Poland, and as Russia did against Finland, but an entirely different situation where two major powers with nearly equal air strength are pitted against each other.

"England will never start the war in the air against German cities," International News Service was told.

"If Germany is rash enough to start it, we will know what to do."

It is pointed out that R. A. F. and French air fields in France are much closer to German cities than German air bases are to Britain.

Killer of Three

ACCUSED of the fatal shooting of three men and the wounding of two others, William Sevastis, above, 52-year-old Martins Ferry, O., waiter, has pleaded guilty to first-degree murder charges. Police said Savastis confessed shooting the men during a fit of rage after his employer, Mike Manos, one of those killed, refused to advance him money in a dice game.

ART TREASURES MOVED

LUCERNE, Switzerland, — As a precautionary measure, the most famous art collections in Switzerland, formerly in Basle and Winterthur, have been moved to the interior of the country. The treasures of the local museum and the private collection of Dr. Hahnenloser, well known for its examples of French nineteenth century paintings, have also been removed from Winterthur to Lucerne, where they are now on exhibition.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

THIRD IN THE HEARTS OF HIS COUNTRYMEN

In New York City a poll was recently taken on the three greatest Americans. Franklin Delano Roosevelt has taken the place of George Washington. Mr. Roosevelt is equal with Abraham Lincoln. Washington is third in the hearts of his countrymen. The President, in addition, is placed ahead of the man who wrote the Declaration of Independence, ahead of Franklin, Jackson, Marshall, Lee, Grant, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, to say nothing of Thomas A. Edison, whose genius lighted the world, Henry Ford, the father of mass production, Horace Mann, the creator of the public school system, Luther Burbank, who brought more new wealth out of the earth than any man who ever lived, — many others.

PETTENGILL

To a certain type of infantile mind there are always three greatest Presidents, Washington, Lincoln and the present incumbent — whoever he may be. Washington, Lincoln and McKinley; Washington, Lincoln and Coolidge. In the days of his glory Wilson was one of the three immortals. While only some Americans fooled themselves to the same extent, Europeans looked on Wilson in 1918 as not only the greatest man of his age but as the greatest of the ages. But so passes the glory of the world. Where is Wilson today? or Coolidge, or McKinley, or Theodore Roosevelt? Aside from the Panama Canal what really big thing remains which any of them did?

For my part, Lincoln is the symbol of America. He might therefore be called the greatest "American." But in the largeness of his soul Washington, to me, is the greatest man who ever trod this western world. To me he is still first in the hearts of his countrymen. And Jefferson, the author of the greatest revolutionary document in all the tide of time is one of the three top flight Americans. He changed the thinking of generations here and throughout the world.

One thing can be said about any of the three. They have met the most exacting of all measurements—time. Living men may fill the moment, but will they, like mountains lifting in the distance, loom higher as the years recede?

But it is an interesting phenomenon that in New York City Franklin Delano Roosevelt has displaced George Washington as the greatest American. With all its admirable qualities it can be said, in all fairness, that New York is the greatest European city in America. As human beings I draw no distinction of personal worth between the average New Yorker and the average American anywhere. There have been great Europeans, like Garibaldi, great Asiatics, like Doctor Noguchi, great Indians, like Gandhi, great Africans, like General Smuts, and no doubt great Hottentots. I mean only that the Europeans who settled in New York City in the past few decades can not possibly have the same "feel" for America as those whose families have been here for from two to ten generations. It takes a heap of living in a house to make it home.

New York City is the melting pot. It has more Italians than Rome, more Jews than Jerusalem, more Russians than any but a few of the largest Russian cities, more Germans than any but a few of the largest German cities. In addition, New York is the Communist capital of America.

It is these milling millions who have demoted General Washington. With little or no tradition of freedom in many of the countries from which they came; with slight experience in self government; with small reverence for the Constitution "far brought from out the storied past"; used, for centuries in lands beyond the seas, to be dependent on the largesse of lords or the bread and circuses of Caesars; used to having those in authority feed them or goose-step them or kill them, it is here, that Washington, described by Frederick the Great as the "greatest soldier of his age," unanimously twice elected first President of the Republic of the West, unanimously chosen to preside in the making of the American Constitution, the greatest and most successful model of government in human history, Washington who wrote the Farewell Address, soundest advice ever given by statesman to citizen, it is in New York City that Washington is third in the hearts of his countrymen. Turn his picture to the wall.

SCOWLING FELLOW NOT KARLOFF, BUT MR. JONES

The fellow who for several weeks has scowled from the portrait at the entrance to Arthur Steddom's studio, 109 West Main Street, is no Boris Karloff. He is D. K. Jones, Negro, from Auburn, California. He came to Circleville on November 13, 1939 and posed as a rich relative of a family here in Circleville. He told the family that he owned a 260-acre ranch out west, and an expensive automobile in Philadelphia, and if they would give him $60 to pay for the freight charges, he would give them the car.

But his story was too good to be true, so he was fined $25 and costs for being a suspicious person. He paid the fine and went on his way.

POPULATION DROPS

SHANGHAI, — The population of Shanhai has dropped by one million to below 4,000,000 in the past few months. The reason, according to a Chinese survey, is the big exodus of Chinese of the poorer classes to Japanese-occupied areas. The high cost of living in the foreign areas here, plus the fact that the occupied areas are now comparatively peaceful and orderly, are given as the main reasons for the exodus.

POPULATION DROPS

SHANGHAI, — The population of Shanhai has dropped by one million to below 4,000,000 in the past few months. The reason, according to a Chinese survey, is the big exodus of Chinese of the poorer classes to Japanese-occupied areas. The high cost of living in the foreign areas here, plus the fact that the occupied areas are now comparatively peaceful and orderly, are given as the main reasons for the exodus.

RAGS TO RICHES CAREER TRACED BY KEYNOTER, 33

Harold E. Stassen, Choice Of Republicans, Lists Varied Education

YOUTHFUL LIFE ON FARM

Handling Of Labor Dispute Boosts Him Into Light As Authority

PHILADELPHIA, May 9—From farm boy to railroad conductor to governor of Minnesota is, in a nutshell, the life story of 33-year-old Harold E. Stassen, the man the Republicans have picked to keynote their National Convention in Philadelphia June 24.

Youngest governor in the country and youngest keynoter ever selected for a convention, Stassen is a political rags-to-riches Horatio Alger hero destined for even bigger things, in the opinion of political observers.

Not only was choice of the six-foot, three-inch Minnesotan interpreted as a Republican bid for the youth vote of the nation next November but it was viewed as another step towards a possible buildup of "the Scandinavian Roosevelt" as Presidential timber in 1944 — when he will have passed the Constitutional age requirement of 35 for an American Chief executive.

Stassen, who was only 31 when elected governor and now is seeking re-election, has a personal popularity in Minnesota illustrated by a homefolk slogan, "We trust Harold," and some Democrats are as outspoken in their admiration of him as the Republicans themselves.

Spent Boyhood on Farm

Born of parents of German, Scandinavian and Czech descent, Stassen spent his boyhood on a Minnesota farm near South St. Paul, did his share of hard work in keeping the place going and followed in the American tradition by getting his early education in a little red schoolhouse.

Later he went to the University of Minnesota, where finances were so pressing a problem he worked at a gasoline service station, became a baker's helper and then got his railroad job—conductor on sleeping cars. That was ten years ago and Stassen today occasionally dons the conductor's cap and uniform he wore while completing his law studies.

After six years of liberal arts and law courses, Stassen was admitted to the bar and opened a law office in South St. Paul with a friend and classmate, Elmer J. Ryan, now a Democratic member of Congress. Although the firm prospered, the political experience he had gained on the campus at Minnesota impelled the young barrister to look toward that field.

He filed for county attorney in 1930, but before the primary election he became ill. Ryan, although a Democrat, stepped in and campaigned for his Republican pal. Stassen won.

Settled Labor Strikes

Two labor disputes made Stassen a state-wide figure soon after he took office. He settled a packing plant strike by forcing both sides to arbitrate and solved a milk-price crisis, first, by threatening the farmers with jail if they staged any violence and, secondly, by getting them better prices.

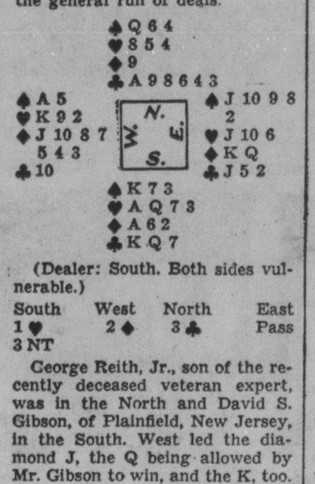

By 1938 he was after the gubernatorial chair, steamrolling the Republican Old Guard, reorganizing the party in the state and battling the formidable Farmer-Labor machine.

He won the election by a two-to-one majority and has batted 1.000 percent on filling his campaign promises. The latter included cleaning up political scandals, putting through civil service, labor and loan shark bills, cutting state operating costs $5,000,000 without reducing relief payments and launching programs to find employment for jobless youths.

First it was clear to Mr. Gibson that East would have returned a third diamond if he had held one. Second, if the heart finesse lost to West, the latter could return a diamond and knock out the A, then almost surely would have the spade A for a re-entry, in view of his bid, and would take the setting tricks after Mr. Gibson had eight.

But even if West had those cards, the contract could be made safely by playing the A on the heart lead, then offering a small spade toward the K. When he did this, West came in with the A, making game sure for the declarer. Had West then led another diamond 4-No Trumps would have been made, but he had sense enough to cash his heart K, so that exactly game was produced. If West had ducked the first spade, declarer would have won with the Q and would have run game.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

After a spade to the J, a heart to the A, a heart to the J, a club to the A, the diamond J to the Q and the K return, how should South play to make an overtrick at 3-Hearts?

Glass might marry again, a press association reported telephoned the Virginian.

"Senator," he began cautiously. "I'm going to ask you an impertient question."

"What is it"

"Is it true you are going to remarry?"

"Young man, that certainly is impertinent," barked Glass, and hung up.

NORWEGIAN NAZIS

Not much of it got beyond the censors, but confidential reports to U. S. officials showed that there was almost as much Norwegian resentement against the Allies as against the Germans.

This was because of skilful Nazi propaganda. Norway was deluged with pamphlets and dinned with radio broadcasts to the effect that the British had been just about to invade Norway. In other words, the Nazis had come merely to head off the British.

This effect on Norwegian opinion was one of the chief reasons for the full dress press conference in Berlin at which Foreign Minister Ribbentrop issued a White Paper alleging that the British had everything cooked up to plunge into Norway.

Unquestionably, the Norwegians believed this to a considerable extent, since many of their upper crust are pro-Nazi.

JOHN L. LEWIS

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers, second largest union in the CIO and strongly pro-Roosevelt, holds its annual convention smart ACWU head, is returning the United Mine Workers' compliment of inviting him to address their Columbus convention, and has asked John L. Lewis to address the Clothing Workers.

Lewis accepted. Whereupon Hillman, with a broad grin, inquired, "John, when would you prefer to make your speech—before or after we pass a third term resolution?"

Lewis laughed, replied that he would leave it up to Hillman.

NOTE—Despite Lewis' hot blasts against a third term, he has told a number of CIO leaders that his statements did not mean he would oppose Roosevelt if he runs.

STOCK MARKET GOVERNORS

The elevation of able, Vice Chairman Charles B. Harding to be chairman of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange will mean no change in the presidency of the "big board." Contrary to reports, young President William McC. Martin will continue in that post.

Like Board Chairman E. E. Bartlett, whom he succeeds, Harding is a strong supporter of Martin and favors a public-minded administration for the Exchange. Harding was nominated after Bartlett declined to run for reelection. As chairman and vice chairman, the two men worked closely together, also with Martin and the SEC.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Presidential candidates Hanford MacNider of Iowa and Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire have worked out an agreement to stick together during the Republican National Convention. Each controls a small bloc of votes, and they have sworn a pact not to surrender them until the other fellow is taken care of . . . . Bridges wants to be taken care of for the Vice Presidency, while MacNider wants to be Secretary of War.

(He was once Assistant War Secretary under Coolidge) . . The A. F. of L. will demand a plank from both political parties that there will be no more anti-trust prosecution of labor unions. AFL leaders are about ready to line up for Roosevelt if trust-busting Thurman Arnold is given the gate.

NEW HOLLAND SCENE OF ANNUAL TRACK CONTEST

The annual Pickaway County track and field meet will be staged Saturday on the New Holland field, with Harold K. Costlow, New Holland superintendent, as meet manager. (A mix-up in dates caused the meet to be announced as being scheduled last Saturday.)

All schools in the county are expected to send contestants to the competition, the total of scores tallied by boys and girls being added to determine the winner. A possibilty loomed that some of the schools, notably Pickaway Township, might not be represented because of lack of interest in track and field competition. Other schools which stress the spring sport are expected to be seeking honors.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Glass might marry again, a press association reported telephoned the Virginian.

"Senator," he began cautiously. "I'm going to ask you an impertient question."

"What is it"

"Is it true you are going to remarry?"

"Young man, that certainly is impertinent," barked Glass, and hung up.

NORWEGIAN NAZIS

Not much of it got beyond the censors, but confidential reports to U. S. officials showed that there was almost as much Norwegian resentement against the Allies as against the Germans.

This was because of skilful Nazi propaganda. Norway was deluged with pamphlets and dinned with radio broadcasts to the effect that the British had been just about to invade Norway. In other words, the Nazis had come merely to head off the British.

This effect on Norwegian opinion was one of the chief reasons for the full dress press conference in Berlin at which Foreign Minister Ribbentrop issued a White Paper alleging that the British had everything cooked up to plunge into Norway.

Unquestionably, the Norwegians believed this to a considerable extent, since many of their upper crust are pro-Nazi.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers, second largest union in the CIO and strongly pro-Roosevelt, holds its annual convention smart ACWU head, is returning the United Mine Workers' compliment of inviting him to address their Columbus convention, and has asked John L. Lewis to address the Clothing Workers.

Lewis accepted. Whereupon Hillman, with a broad grin, inquired, "John, when would you prefer to make your speech—before or after we pass a third term resolution?"

Lewis laughed, replied that he would leave it up to Hillman.

NOTE—Despite Lewis' hot blasts against a third term, he has told a number of CIO leaders that his statements did not mean he would oppose Roosevelt if he runs.

STOCK MARKET GOVERNORS

The elevation of able, Vice Chairman Charles B. Harding to be chairman of the board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange will mean no change in the presidency of the "big board." Contrary to reports, young President William McC. Martin will continue in that post.

Like Board Chairman E. E. Bartlett, whom he succeeds, Harding is a strong supporter of Martin and favors a public-minded administration for the Exchange. Harding was nominated after Bartlett declined to run for reelection. As chairman and vice chairman, the two men worked closely together, also with Martin and the SEC.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Presidential candidates Hanford MacNider of Iowa and Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire have worked out an agreement to stick together during the Republican National Convention. Each controls a small bloc of votes, and they have sworn a pact not to surrender them until the other fellow is taken care of . . . . Bridges wants to be taken care of for the Vice Presidency, while MacNider wants to be Secretary of War.

(He was once Assistant War Secretary under Coolidge) . . The A. F. of L. will demand a plank from both political parties that there will be no more anti-trust prosecution of labor unions. AFL leaders are about ready to line up for Roosevelt if trust-busting Thurman Arnold is given the gate.

NEW HOLLAND SCENE OF ANNUAL TRACK CONTEST

The annual Pickaway County track and field meet will be staged Saturday on the New Holland field, with Harold K. Costlow, New Holland superintendent, as meet manager. (A mix-up in dates caused the meet to be announced as being scheduled last Saturday.)

All schools in the county are expected to send contestants to the competition, the total of scores tallied by boys and girls being added to determine the winner. A possibilty loomed that some of the schools, notably Pickaway Township, might not be represented because of lack of interest in track and field competition. Other schools which stress the spring sport are expected to be seeking honors.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Schooley, living on route 1, Circleville, says, "I had suffered from constipation for years, and this condition forced me to eat light meals, but even what I ate caused 'heartburn', gas, shortness of breath, fiery acid risings, and sour stomach, and sometimes made me so nervous that I couldn't rest well.

"Reading what Vendol was doing for other suffering people all around here, I gave it a trial, and it relieved my constipation so well that now I can eat anything, even dried foods, with no distress, nervousness, or headaches, and the dizzy spells are things of the past and I sleep like a healthy child. PUNISHING ENGLAND

AN American correspondent, returned home, is explaining Hitler as "a man who just can't sit still." And on top of that natural qualification for his job, he has "a great desire to punish England."

To punish England for what? Well, if we Americans get the idea straight, for being rich and successful and having accumulated a lot of real estate and warships and concessions and monopolies of various kinds before some of the other countries got started. Now he is making Germany move fast to make up for lost time.

IDLE YOUTH

SPEAKING at a conference of the American Legion, a district commander insists on more attention being given to young people, especially those unemployed.

"We must overcome old inhibitions and inertia and face realties," he says. "We must find and finance ways to overcome idleness." He urges a system of camps extending throughout the country to care for the "underprivileged young people."

He is certainly right about the principle involved, at least. It was the unemployed young men in Germany who turned into the tough Storm Troopers by whose violence Hitler rose to power. Youth, when baffled, or bottled up, tends to become explosive.

Much has been done for our young men in the CCC camps, and in other ways, but such opportunities for young women are scarce. Doubtless more could be done along that line, publicly and privately.

POETRY AND SPORTS

JOHN KIERAN, sports writer of the New York Times and chief learner and rememberer of the "Information Please" radio program, had a surprise the other day. He had followed his frequent practise of using a bit of poetry in his columns, "Sports of the Times." But, somehow, he fumbled and attributed it to Milton instead of Wordsworth.

Mr. Kieran made proper public apology, but not before dozens of readers had written letters of protest. These letters may have caused a proud head to hang low, but they also caused a lover of poetry to rejoice.

"There is one jewel shining in the wreckage," wrote Mr. Kieran. "This observer didn't know that so many citizens cared!"

Whether it means that sports fans like poetry, or poetry fans like sports as discussed by Mr. Kieran, will be hard to determine without a scientific poll. But it's something to know that there are so many persons in and around New York today who know their Milton and Wordsworth.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

FDR COULDN'T WIN COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON—The President ran into an unexpected hornets' nest when he broke the news privately to Representative Vinson and Senator Walsh, chairmen of the House and Senate Naval Committees, that he intended to veto the Navy personnel bill.

This bill was designed to rid the higher ranks of deadwood and also to retain in the service eight of the Navy's ablest flyers, slated for retirement largely because they are not Annapolis graduates. The bill encountered tremendous opposition from the brass hats, who when defeated in Congress, turned to the White House—with better luck.

Apparently figuring he had a selling job to do, Roosevelt summoned Vinson and Walsh and told them he was going to ax the bill.

Walsh promptly protested, quietly told the President he was making a mistake. Roosevelt expected this, since the Massachusetts Senator is no friend of the brass hats, does his own thinking on naval matters. The big surprise came from Vinson.

The Georgia Congressman is generally considered a close ally of the Navy high command, but this time he hit the ceiling. "You can't do that, Mr. President," he exclaimed. "That isn't right."

The President tried to soothe him by arguing that everything proposed in the bill would be done anyway. Ten, and possibly eleven admirals will be retired and the eight crack pilots would be retained on active duty.

"Don't get excited, Carl," pacified the President, "everything will be all right without this bill."

CONGRESS VS. NAVY

"But the question isn't whether you will do these things without this bill, Mr. President," shot back Vinson. "The question goes much deeper than that. It is whether Congress or the brass hats shall do the legislating for the Navy. It has always been my understanding that it was Congress, elected by the people, which had this power. But apparently I was wrong and it's the brass hats who decide Navy policies."

Controlling his temper, though clearly irked by this blast, Roosevelt protested that he was not trying to flout the will of Congress. He insised that there was a "better way" to handle the maters covered by the bill.

"I disagree with you," retorted Vinson. "It was the judgment of Congress that these things should be done, and if they are right, then what's wrong with legislating on them? Furthermore, I would point out to you that we spent almost two years getting this vital bill through Congress. Now all our time and efforts are wasted simply because you choose to be guided by the admirals instead of by Congress."

After this fusillade the President made still another attempt to soothe Vinson, but the Georgian rose and started for the door with this parting shot: "I still expect you to stand by us, Mr. President. Don't let us down. We're your real friends."

Treating Warts by Mental Suggestion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHAT is the treatment of warts?

This was the subject of discussion of about 50 physicians at a recent meeting of the Academy of Dermatology in Philadelphia. This shows that the seemingly trivial problem is one that is by no means as easy as it looks. Some cases of warts are very easy to cure; others will tax the resourcefulness of the skin specialist to the limit. About half the cases of juvenile warts, on people below the age of 15, can be cured without treatment.

Since so many warts can be cured by suggestion, this is the explanation of time-honored methods of rubbing the wart with a piece of meat and then burying the meat under an apple tree on a moonlight night, rubbing the wart with a cut apple licked with the tongue, etc.

The suggestion treatment consists in painting the warts with an entirely inert coloring fluid. The patient is told very impressively that as long as any trace of color is visible the warts are not to be touched. The complete disappearance of the warts occurs in four to eight weeks with this innocuous treatment in favorable cases.

The best form of physical treatment is by the x-ray. Simple applications of certain ointments are often very efficacious.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Diet to Prevent Epileptic Seizures

What is the diet used to prevent epileptic seizures?

The diet is a high-fat diet, low in starch and sugar, known as the "ketogenic diet." It is considered by many who have had experience with epilepsy that convulsions can be controlled better with this diet than with the use of drugs. In cases in which it works, which amount to about 50 per cent of patients, it works beautifully. It is especially valuable in children.

It is possible for patients in any walk of life to learn this diet and adhere to it rigidly. We have records of laborers who have learned the diet and who have carried it out over a period of years. Young children offer the most difficult problem, because in many instances it is impossible to make them understand the importance of rigid adherence to the routine. Many of them will steal candy or sweets and, of course, spoil the state of ketosis.

Other children learn very early the importance of rigid adherence. Dr. Thomas Marks, of Lexington, Ky., tells a most illuminating story of one of his little patients who had been on the diet for several months. This boy came into a corner drug store with three of his playmates. The playmates each bought an ice cream cone, and this little fellow showed no inclination to obtain one. A traveling man standing in the store noticed that the boy did not have a cone and, feeling sorry for him, suggested that he would be glad to buy one for the child. The boy looked up at him and said: "Thanks, Mister, but I wouldn't eat one of them things for fifty dollars. I would be sure to have a fit tonight if I did."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W.: "What can be eaten to improve splitting finger-nails? Does buttermilk contain calcium? Are calcium tablets harmful in any way and would they help brittle nails?"

Answer—Food has little to do with the causation of brittle nails. Vitamin-deficient diet may tend in this direction but we have little experimental proof of this. Buttermilk does contain calcium. Calcium is not helpful in brittle nails. Brittle nails are, in most cases, due to an infection, either by ringworm or other fungus or yeast, or some germ.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

Happiness, C. O. D.

by OREN ARNOLD

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

Bill suddenly jabbed a finger at Gayle. An idea had struck him.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

BENJAMIN MERRIFIELD, aged capitalist, hires

GAYLE DIXON to make love to his grandson,

JEREMY TUCKER, a shy student of archeology, while

BILL BAILEY and six pretty girls are employed to help bring life and youth to the Merrifield mansion.

YESTERDAY: During a phone call Mr. Merrifield explains to Gayle's mother what he is trying to do for his grandson.

CHAPTER SIX

"FIRST AND most important point to remember is—our being here must be made entirely logical to Jeremy Tucker." Bill said that for the fourth time. He was in a huddle again with Gayle.

"All right, Bill. But we've admitted that. We've talked for hours. It's nearly dinner time. The girls will be coming back. And we are all bound to meet Jeremy again tonight. We must have a good story and stick to it. We ought to tell it to Mr. Merrifield in advance."

"Lordy!" said Bill, stumped for once.

"You played football in college. What else did you do?"

"Dramatics. Besides studies, I mean." Bill spoke as if his college career had, therefore, been wasted. He gazed glumly at nothing.

"Amateur dramatics? Little theater work, Bill?"

"Yep. Great fun, but—well, Gayle, I had a lot of ideals about being a stage director, or maybe a movie director some day. So far I haven't found or made even a crack where I could crawl into that profession."

"But you aren't licked?"

"No. Certainly not. Nobody ever licked a Bailey. Coach used to say that I—"

"I understand. You were a grand halfback, I've heard. Now listen to me—Mr. Merrifield ordered you to take charge of the six girls you and he hired. You are to be their boss. You have to think up something constructive for them to do. Naturally you must draw on your best talents and experiences, and since football seems to be beyond our consideration, I suggest dramatics."

Gayle was talking ever so seriously.

"You mean—"

"I mean, Bill, don't girls sometimes act in plays? Or work around amateur productions? Wouldn't it be entirely logical for a crowd of young people to—"

"SA-A-AY!"

Bill suddenly jabbed a finger at her. An idea had struck him. Gayle's idea.

"Gayle, you're wonderful! Sure! We can pretend that Mr. Merrifield, already given to philanthrophy, is sponsoring a new Little Theater. I've been wracking my brains for a way to use this big mansion and its grounds. Those two huge rooms downstairs that open together will make a swell theater! Put a stage at that east end. Ballyhoo it all. We'll have Jeremy surrounded by fun and excitement before he knows it!"

There was another 10 minutes of hurried talk — mostly exhultant monologue by Bill Bailey, who could be morose and worried one moment and in the figurative clouds the next. Gayle was happy for having solved his problem for him. Or at least having given him a start.

Graham, the butler, had been told to expect the six young ladies back for dinner and, surprisingly enough, Mr. Weems came to Gayle at 5:10 p. m. with a written menu.

"We have had no feminine guests here in so many years, Miss Dixon," he apologized, "that I—that we are not at all sure you will approve of the selections. When we ventured to ask Mr. Merrifield, he said that you were now in complete charge of the household, and—"

"He did?"

"Oh, of course, miss. The news has quite upset the staff. I mean, in a decicedly pleasant way. The cook—and Graham—you see, we have had no—ah, life, and gaiety, here in so long, and this morning you ventured to say that happiness could—"

"Oh, Mr. Weems, certainly! We must all be very, very happy. Please tell the servants to go right ahead, using their own discretion. I—I am to act as hostess then?"

"Yes, my dear. Mr. Merrifield wishes it."

"Oh, gee!"

The menu was complete. Wallace, the Merrifield cook, knew his business. Even the gardener had been told and had responded, so that the dining table was already lovely with flowers when Gayle inspected it. She had but few suggestions to make and she found two kitchen helpers, besides Wallace and Graham and the gardener, anxious to carry them out at once. Graham begged a moment to introduce a new maid-servant, Celeste, who had been thoughtfully added to the staff that afternoon.

"If you approve of her," Graham said, "she is to be your personal maid, miss."

Gayle took a deep breath, and nodded. She was afraid to speak for a long moment, lest she explode.

She stayed in a sort of cloud-like daze for the ensuing hour. The six girls came back, as ordered. Gayle asked Tempe to help her "think." Together they planned seats at the table. There would be four men—Mr. Merrifield, Jeremy, Mr. Weems and Bill. And seven girls, picked for loveliness and apparent intelligence. Gayle backed the girls up into a quiet corner and almost growled at them.

"For Pete's sake, kids, be bright and cheerful tonight!" she commanded. "Understand? No solemn faces."

"But what are we to do? What is our work, and who"

"Sh-h-h-h! You'll learn. Just be glad."

Graham had no chance to announce formally to everybody that dinner was served. He had to round up Mr. Merrifield from the third floor, Mr. Weems from the second, Bill Bailey from a far wing, and finally Jeremy from the deep recesses of the library. When he reported to Gayle, that flustered miss decided this meal perhaps should progress informally.

It was a happy decision. Mr. Merrifield came in beaming. He hadn't eaten in the big dining room since a group of mining men dined there with him last winter, and the assembly of young people brought an invisible spark of something to it now. They and the flowers, and the somehow brighter lights in the great crystal chandelier, and the brilliantly dusted furniture, and the floor that shone, and the contagious giggling of little Tempe Hyde. Even the quietest of the six girls, a Latin beauty named Lola Montesa, was visibly elated.

The old millionaire paused at the big double door to look on for a moment, beaming.

"Glory, what a sight!" he exclaimed, and meant it. "Everything but music!"

"Oh!" Gayle spoke quickly. "I can play the piano. Jeremy hasn't come down yet. Shall we sing one song before dinner?"

"We shall!"

The grand piano was in a conservatory off the dining room. Only old-time tune Gayle could remember at the moment was one that had been recently revived, so she plunged into its lively tempo—

"Come on and hear,
Come on and hear,
Alexander's Ragtime band!"

The singing began instantly because the other youths knew it. Even old Mr. Merrifield knew it, but from an earlier day. The piano was out of tune, the harmony was faulty, but the pleasure was high. Jeremy Tucker came down the winding staircase onto this scene of genuine gaiety, stood looking at the group with a certain awe.

Five minutes later they were all at table. Each stood respectfully, waiting for Mr. Merrifield to sit down first, but instead he lifted his fine old white head upward and closed his eyes.

"God in Heaven," he prayed, "I am a fool at times. Forgive me. Make me worthy of the pleasure brought to me this day. Share the pleasure with these young people. Bless them. Oh, bless them, God of us all. Amen!"

They sat down, and Gayle Dixon looked quickly at Bill Bailey. Strangely, she caught his eye, and she observed that he, too, was having trouble with a lump in his throat.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Awake to the sound of machine gun firing that turned out to be an ambitious woodpecker working on a telephone pole in the alley. For a time thought we also might have been invaded. We might be, too, sometime, but that time is far off if at all. Recalled conversations with many World War veterans who almost to the man had declared they had lost nothing in Europe the last time over and that they had no intention of returning there. All said, however, that they would be pleased to shoulder arms and fight against any invader. I never have been one who went looking for a fight. Experience has taught me that one always can be found. So, I am in favor of waiting until the fight comes to me.

Read in the Satevepost of how we are already in the war and are not aware of the fact and that the time probably is not so far away when we will actually join the firing. God forbid that the prediction come true. No one can point to a single advantage to our land, or any land, resulting from our participation in the last war. The debt of that struggle and its consequences are strangling us and will continue strangling us for several more generations. Try to imagine financing a war on top of our present obligations. And loss of money is the least serious of war's consequences. If I didn't oppose war with all my might I think I never again could look into the eyes of a mother or young man. They are the real sufferers. The rest of us are hit only in the pocketbook and blows there never are fatal.

How strange it seems to see those mighty Yanks in the American league basement. Where is all that vaunted strength? And where is the actual strength that humbled our own Reds last fall? I have a strong suspicion that it is present and one of these days ere long will break into the open once more.

How much vote buying will go on next Tuesday? We have entirely too much of that in this county, and have had for years. The man or woman who sells a vote should be refused the right to vote. And for those who believe that there is no vote buying I wish to cite an incident in our public schools. The discussion was about the primaries and one child announced that her mother did not intend voting this time. "They didn't give her a cent the last time," the child told the teacher.

PUNISHING ENGLAND

AN American correspondent, returned home, is explaining Hitler as "a man who just can't sit still." And on top of that natural qualification for his job, he has "a great desire to punish England."

To punish England for what? Well, if we Americans get the idea straight, for being rich and successful and having accumulated a lot of real estate and warships and concessions and monopolies of various kinds before some of the other countries got started. Now he is making Germany move fast to make up for lost time.

IDLE YOUTH

SPEAKING at a conference of the American Legion, a district commander insists on more attention being given to young people, especially those unemployed.

"We must overcome old inhibitions and inertia and face realties," he says. "We must find and finance ways to overcome idleness." He urges a system of camps extending throughout the country to care for the "underprivileged young people."

He is certainly right about the principle involved, at least. It was the unemployed young men in Germany who turned into the tough Storm Troopers by whose violence Hitler rose to power. Youth, when baffled, or bottled up, tends to become explosive.

Much has been done for our young men in the CCC camps, and in other ways, but such opportunities for young women are scarce. Doubtless more could be done along that line, publicly and privately.

POETRY AND SPORTS

JOHN KIERAN, sports writer of the New York Times and chief learner and rememberer of the "Information Please" radio program, had a surprise the other day. He had followed his frequent practise of using a bit of poetry in his columns, "Sports of the Times." But, somehow, he fumbled and attributed it to Milton instead of Wordsworth.

Mr. Kieran made proper public apology, but not before dozens of readers had written letters of protest. These letters may have caused a proud head to hang low, but they also caused a lover of poetry to rejoice.

"There is one jewel shining in the wreckage," wrote Mr. Kieran. "This observer didn't know that so many citizens cared!"

Whether it means that sports fans like poetry, or poetry fans like sports as discussed by Mr. Kieran, will be hard to determine without a scientific poll. But it's something to know that there are so many persons in and around New York today who know their Milton and Wordsworth.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

FDR COULDN'T WIN COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON—The President ran into an unexpected hornets' nest when he broke the news privately to Representative Vinson and Senator Walsh, chairmen of the House and Senate Naval Committees, that he intended to veto the Navy personnel bill.

This bill was designed to rid the higher ranks of deadwood and also to retain in the service eight of the Navy's ablest flyers, slated for retirement largely because they are not Annapolis graduates. The bill encountered tremendous opposition from the brass hats, who when defeated in Congress, turned to the White House—with better luck.

Apparently figuring he had a selling job to do, Roosevelt summoned Vinson and Walsh and told them he was going to ax the bill.

Walsh promptly protested, quietly told the President he was making a mistake. Roosevelt expected this, since the Massachusetts Senator is no friend of the brass hats, does his own thinking on naval matters. The big surprise came from Vinson.

The Georgia Congressman is generally considered a close ally of the Navy high command, but this time he hit the ceiling. "You can't do that, Mr. President," he exclaimed. "That isn't right."

The President tried to soothe him by arguing that everything proposed in the bill would be done anyway. Ten, and possibly eleven admirals will be retired and the eight crack pilots would be retained on active duty.

"Don't get excited, Carl," pacified the President, "everything will be all right without this bill."

CONGRESS VS. NAVY

"But the question isn't whether you will do these things without this bill, Mr. President," shot back Vinson. "The question goes much deeper than that. It is whether Congress or the brass hats shall do the legislating for the Navy. It has always been my understanding that it was Congress, elected by the people, which had this power. But apparently I was wrong and it's the brass hats who decide Navy policies."

Controlling his temper, though clearly irked by this blast, Roosevelt protested that he was not trying to flout the will of Congress. He insised that there was a "better way" to handle the maters covered by the bill.

"I disagree with you," retorted Vinson. "It was the judgment of Congress that these things should be done, and if they are right, then what's wrong with legislating on them? Furthermore, I would point out to you that we spent almost two years getting this vital bill through Congress. Now all our time and efforts are wasted simply because you choose to be guided by the admirals instead of by Congress."

After this fusillade the President made still another attempt to soothe Vinson, but the Georgian rose and started for the door with this parting shot: "I still expect you to stand by us, Mr. President. Don't let us down. We're your real friends."

Treating Warts by Mental Suggestion

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WHAT is the treatment of warts?

This was the subject of discussion of about 50 physicians at a recent meeting of the Academy of Dermatology in Philadelphia. This shows that the seemingly trivial problem is one that is by no means as easy as it looks. Some cases of warts are very easy to cure; others will tax the resourcefulness of the skin specialist to the limit. About half the cases of juvenile warts, on people below the age of 15, can be cured without treatment.

Since so many warts can be cured by suggestion, this is the explanation of time-honored methods of rubbing the wart with a piece of meat and then burying the meat under an apple tree on a moonlight night, rubbing the wart with a cut apple licked with the tongue, etc.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The suggestion treatment consists in painting the warts with an entirely inert coloring fluid. The patient is told very impressively that as long as any trace of color is visible the warts are not to be touched. The complete disappearance of the warts occurs in four to eight weeks with this innocuous treatment in favorable cases.

The best form of physical treatment is by the x-ray. Simple applications of certain ointments are often very efficacious.

Diet to Prevent Epileptic Seizures

What is the diet used to prevent epileptic seizures?

The diet is a high-fat diet, low in starch and sugar, known as the "ketogenic diet." It is considered by many who have had experience with epilepsy that convulsions can be controlled better with this diet than with the use of drugs. In cases in which it works, which amount to about 50 per cent of patients, it works beautifully. It is especially valuable in children.

It is possible for patients in any walk of life to learn this diet and adhere to it rigidly. We have records of laborers who have learned the diet and who have carried it out over a period of years. Young children offer the most difficult problem, because in many instances it is impossible to make them understand the importance of rigid adherence to the routine. Many of them will steal candy or sweets and, of course, spoil the state of ketosis.

Other children learn very early the importance of rigid adherence. Dr. Thomas Marks, of Lexington, Ky., tells a most illuminating story of one of his little patients who had been on the diet for several months. This boy came into a corner drug store with three of his playmates. The playmates each bought an ice cream cone, and this little fellow showed no inclination to obtain one. A traveling man standing in the store noticed that the boy did not have a cone and, feeling sorry for him, suggested that he would be glad to buy one for the child. The boy looked up at him and said: "Thanks, Mister, but I wouldn't eat one of them things for fifty dollars. I would be sure to have a fit tonight if I did."

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

W.: "What can be eaten to improve splitting finger-nails? Does buttermilk contain calcium? Are calcium tablets harmful in any way and would they help brittle nails?"

Answer—Food has little to do with the causation of brittle nails. Vitamin-deficient diet may tend in this direction but we have little experimental proof of this. Buttermilk does contain calcium. Calcium is not helpful in brittle nails. Brittle nails are, in most cases, due to an infection, either by ringworm or other fungus or yeast, or some germ.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. Awake to the sound of machine gun firing that turned out to be an ambitious woodpecker working on a telephone pole in the alley. For a time thought we also might have been invaded. We might be, too, sometime, but that time is far off if at all. Recalled conversations with many World War veterans who almost to the man had declared they had left nothing in Europe the last time over and that they had no intention of returning there. All said, however, that they would be pleased to shoulder arms and fight against any invader. I never have been one who went looking for a fight. Experience has taught me that one always can be found. So, I am in favor of waiting until the fight comes to me.

Read in the Satevepost of how we are already in the war and are not aware of the fact and that the time probably is not actually join the firing. God forbid that the prediction come true. No one can point to a single advantage to our land, or any land, resulting from our participation in the last war. The debt of that struggle and its consequences are strangling us and will continue strangling us for several more generations. Try to imagine financing a war on top of our present obligations. And loss of money is the least serious of war's consequences. If I didn't oppose war with all my might I think I never again could look into the eyes of a mother or young man. They are the real sufferers. The rest of us are hit only in the pocketbook and blows there never are fatal.

Bill suddenly jabbed a finger at Gayle. An idea had struck him.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:
BENJAMIN MERRIFIELD, aged capitalist, hires
GAYLE DIXON to make love to his grandson,
JEREMY TUCKER, a shy student of archeology, while
BILL BAILEY and six pretty girls are employed to help bring life and youth to the Merrifield mansion.

* * *

YESTERDAY: During a phone call Mr. Merrifield explains to Gayle's mother what he is trying to do for his grandson.

CHAPTER SIX

"FIRST AND most important point to remember is—our being here must be made entirely logical to Jeremy Tucker." Bill said that for the fourth time. He was in a huddle again with Gayle.

"All right, Bill. But we've admitted that. We've talked for hours. It's nearly dinner time. The girls will be coming back. And we are all bound to meet Jeremy again tonight. We must have a good story and stick to it. We ought to tell it to Mr. Merrifield in advance."

"Lordy!" said Bill, stumped for once.

"You played football in college. What else did you do?"

"Dramatics. Besides studies, I mean." Bill spoke as if his college career had, therefore, been wasted. He gazed glumly at nothing.

"Amateur dramatics? Little theater work, Bill?"

"Yep. Great fun, but—well, Gayle, I had a lot of ideals about being a stage director, or maybe a movie director some day. So far I haven't found or made even a crack where I could crawl into that profession."

"But you aren't licked?"

"No. Certainly not. Nobody ever licked a Bailey. Coach used to say that I—"

"I understand. You were a grand halfback, I've heard. Now listen to me—Mr. Merrifield ordered you to take charge of the six girls you and he hired. You are to be their boss. You have to think up something constructive for them to do. Naturally you must draw on your best talents and experiences, and since football seems to be beyond our consideration, I suggest dramatics."

Gayle was talking ever so seriously.

"You mean—"

"I mean, Bill, don't girls sometimes act in plays? Or work around amateur productions? Wouldn't it be entirely logical for a crowd of young people to—"

"SA-A-AY!"

Bill suddenly jabbed a finger at her. An idea had struck him. Gayle's idea.

"Gayle, you're wonderful! Sure! We can pretend that Mr. Merrifield, already given to philanthrophy, is sponsoring a new Little Theater. I've been wracking my brains for a way to use this big mansion and its grounds. Those two huge rooms downstairs that open together will make a swell theater! Put a stage at that east end. Ballyhoo it all. We'll have Jeremy surrounded by fun and excitement before he knows it!"

There was another 10 minutes of hurried talk — mostly exhultant monologue by Bill Bailey, who could be morose and worried one moment and in the figurative clouds the next. Gayle was happy for having solved his problem for him. Or at least having given him a start.

Graham, the butler, had been told to expect the six young ladies back for dinner and, surprisingly enough, Mr. Weems came to Gayle at 5:10 p. m. with a written menu.

"We have had no feminine guests here in so many years, Miss Dixon," he apologized, "that I—that we are not at all sure you will approve of the selections. When we ventured to ask Mr. Merrifield, he said that you were now in complete charge of the household, and—"

"He did?"

"Oh, of course, miss. The news has quite upset the staff. I mean, in a decicedly pleasant way. The cook—and Graham—you see, we have had no—ah, life, and gaiety, here in so long, and this morning you ventured to say that happiness could—"

"Oh, Mr. Weems, certainly! We must all be very, very happy. Please tell the servants to go right ahead, using their own discretion. I—I am to act as hostess then?"

"Yes, my dear. Mr. Merrifield wishes it."

"Oh, gee!"

The menu was complete. Wallace, the Merrifield cook, knew his business. Even the gardener had been told and had responded, so that the dining table was already lovely with flowers when Gayle inspected it. She had but few suggestions to make and she found two kitchen helpers, besides Wallace and Graham and the gardener, anxious to carry them out at once. Graham begged a moment to introduce a new maid-servant, Celeste, who had been thoughtfully added to the staff that afternoon.

"If you approve of her," Graham said, "she is to be your personal maid, miss."

Gayle took a deep breath, and nodded. She was afraid to speak for a long moment, lest she explode.

She stayed in a sort of cloud-like daze for the ensuing hour. The six girls came back, as ordered. Gayle asked Tempe to help her "think." Together they planned seats at the table. There would be four men—Mr. Merrifield, Jeremy, Mr. Weems and Bill. And seven girls, picked for loveliness and apparent intelligence. Gayle backed the girls up into a quiet corner and almost growled at them.

"For Pete's sake, kids, be bright and cheerful tonight!" she commanded. "Understand? No solemn faces."

"But what are we to do? What is our work, and who"

"Sh-h-h-h! You'll learn. Just be glad."

Graham had no chance to announce formally to everybody that dinner was served. He had to round up Mr. Merrifield from the third floor, Mr. Weems from the second, Bill Bailey from a far wing, and finally Jeremy from the deep recesses of the library. When he reported to Gayle, that flustered miss decided this meal perhaps should progress informally.

It was a happy decision. Mr. Merrifield came in beaming. He hadn't eaten in the big dining room since a group of mining men dined there with him last winter, and the assembly of young people brought an invisible spark of something to it now. They and the flowers, and the somehow brighter lights in the great crystal chandelier, and the brilliantly dusted furniture, and the floor that shone, and the contagious giggling of little Tempe Hyde. Even the quietest of the six girls, a Latin beauty named Lola Montesa, was visibly elated.

The old millionaire paused at the big double door to look on for a moment, beaming.

"Glory, what a sight!" he exclaimed, and meant it. "Everything but music!"

"Oh!" Gayle spoke quickly. "I can play the piano. Jeremy hasn't come down yet. Shall we sing one song before dinner?"

"We shall!"

The grand piano was in a conservatory off the dining room. Only old-time tune Gayle could remember at the moment was one that had been recently revived, so she plunged into its lively tempo—

"Come on and hear,
Come on and hear,
Alexander's Ragtime band!"

The singing began instantly because the other youths knew it. Even old Mr. Merrifield knew it, but from an earlier day. The piano was out of tune, the harmony was faulty, but the pleasure was high. Jeremy Tucker came down the winding staircase onto this scene of genuine gaiety, stood looking at the group with a certain awe.

Five minutes later they were all at table. Each stood respectfully, waiting for Mr. Merrifield to sit down first, but instead he lifted his fine old white head upward and closed his eyes.

"God in Heaven," he prayed, "I am a fool at times. Forgive me. Make me worthy of the pleasure brought to me this day. Share the pleasure with these young people. Bless them. Oh, bless them, God of us all. Amen!"

They sat down, and Gayle Dixon looked quickly at Bill Bailey. Strangely, she caught his eye, and she observed that he, too, was having trouble with a lump in his throat.

Union Guild Meets

The Union Guild held a short meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Olaf Thorne of Jackson Township, Mrs. Roy Rittinger presiding during the business and devotional hour. An interesting feature of the meeting was the biography of Florence Nightengale which Mrs. Rittinger read, the tribute being given in observance of her birth month.

Twenty members and guests were present, each reading an appropriate Mother's Day poem. Two contests were enjoyed with Miss Bertha Jones winning both. The one on "Bible Mothers" was a part of the guild observance of Mother's Day.

Mrs. Thorne, assisted by Mrs. Walter Bumgarner, served a dessert lunch after the program.

The next meeting will be June 12 at the home of Mrs. Sherman Campbell, Wayne Township, when Mrs. Walter Metzger wil assist in entertaining.

Students to Honor Mothers

Pickaway County students at Ohio State University are inviting their mothers, and fathers, too, to visit the campus this week end for Mother's Day.

Saturday night, leaders of the state-wide Mothers' Association and of its county units will have a dinner meeting in Pomerene Hall, at which Dr. Howard L. Bevis, Ohio State president, and Mrs. Bevis, will be guests. A business meeting will follow.

'Stop Roosevelt' Campaign Being Abandoned, Capital Advices Disclose

WASHINGTON, May 9—Friends of Vice President Garner were talking today about the possibility of another Roosevelt-Garner ticket this year, as third-term advocates continued their rush to President Roosevelt's bandwagon.

So far as could be ascertained, Garner personally has made no move in this direction. "Cactus Jack" has contented himself thus far with telling intimates "it's all over but the shouting"—that Mr. Roosevelt can be renominated at Chicago if he desires, and that no one can stop him.

Other hopefuls for the Democratic nomination voiced similar sentiments.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (Mont.), just returned from a swing through the southeastern states, said:

"I don't think there is any doubt that President Roosevelt will be drafted and will definitely have to accept or take himself out of the race. I am still of the opinion he is not a candidate."

Drafting Expected

This was the first time Wheeler had expressed belief the President would be drafted. Observers believed the statement reflected sentiment he had absorbed during his recent trip, as well as latest primary developments.

Wheeler had requested an appointment with the President and is expected to visit the White House in the next few days.

Talk of another Roosevelt-Garner ticket marked a new stage in the progressive collapse of the vice president's campaign for the Number 1 nomination this July. Washington political observers regarded it significant that Garner's associates should now be suggesting a third term for the complete ticket of 1932 and 1936, after having set out originally on what had the earmarks of a "stop-Roosevelt" movement.

Presidential intimates who are praying for a third term were jubilant over Mr. Roosevelt's impressive showing in California where he won better than 6 to 1 over Garner and 3 to 1 over all opposition. This group, in informal conversation, is stressing more than ever the imperativeness of retaining Mr. Roosevelt in the White House because of his mastery of foreign affairs.

The California defeat came as no surprise to Garner. Inured by earlier primary setbacks, the vice president predicted in advance that he would be well beaten in the West Coast state.

Meanwhile Sen. Clyde Herring (Ia.), an ardent third termer, declared that on Mr. Roosevelt could carry his state for the Democrats this fall. Herring pointed out he spoke as one of two Democrats ever elected governor of normally Republican Iowa and asserted there were 100,000 voters in the tall corn state who could come out to vote for the President, but who otherwise either would stay at home or vote the G. Iowa Democrats, who hold their state convention this Saturday, were unsuccessful yesterday in getting comment one way or the other from the President on a "harmony" proposal, which entainled instruction of Iowa's 22 delegates for favorite-son Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, and writing of a strong New Deal indorsement into their platform.

will ask the prime minister to form a new ministry.

This action will result in automatic dissolution of the present cabinet, enabling Chamberlain to start anew on the widest possible basis.

Official quarters emphasized, however, that despite the foregoing the situation remains most fluid. The individual reactions of various conservative constituencies throughout the country may ultimately have some bearing on Chamberlain's future course.

Meanwhile, Clement Davies, Laborite, withdrew a motion for the House to reconvene on May 14 instead of May 21 as now scheduled. He and his Labor colleagues agreed to utilize the interim for discussions regarding the future.

Buffeted by two days of invective and angry criticism of his war policies in both the House of Commons and House of Lords, Chamberlain planned to review the situation fully with his cabinet colleagues today, taking full stock of the national uproar caused by the Allied failure in Norway.

Thereafter the prime minister may confer with King George VI, acquainting him with developments and informing the monarch of his decision, if one has been reached.

The Prime Minister omitted his usual stroll in the park today and conferred with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax before going to the House of Commons. En route he was cheered by 100 spectators gathered in front of his Downing Street residence.

The entire country is waiting avidly to see what Chamberlain will do in this greatest crisis of his career.

His friends, pointing to his admittedly courageous character, said they could not visualize him giving up without further struggle. According to these circles, he may attempt to rally his forces and make a bid for continued leadership with a drastically reconstructed cabinet.

These same quarters also believed that a period of behind-the-scenes maneuvers may be expected before Chamberlain casts the die one way or another.

But opposition Laborites and Liberals jubilantly proclaimed that the House of Commons vote last night—281 to 200 in favor of Chamberlain in an embarrassingly thin vote of confidence—delivered the death blow to the prime minister's political career.

This opinion apparently was shared by most of the British press and a large percentage of members of Chamberlain's own Conservative party.

But at the same time it was recognized that Chamberlain is not a political quitter and will weigh carefully every factor and perhaps fight bitterly in belief his leadership is essential for national unity.

The vote formed the slimmest majority Chamberlain ever has gained on an issue of confidence in his regime, although even smaller majorities have been recorded on domestic side issues. His previous confidence majorities have been in excess of 200 votes, as in the instance of the Czech crisis, when Chamberlain garnered a majority of 222.

In last night's contest, 130 government members of Parliament abstained from voting. Of these 30 were ill and some were serving abroad.

Forty-four Conservative members of Commons voted against Chamberlain, including American-born Lady Astor and all the service members. Lady Astor commented cryptically:

"This is the worst news Hitler has had."

The result of the vote raised a terrific clamor from the opposition benches. Shouts of "resign" echoed through the historic chamber and Laborites started singing "Rule Britannia."

Chamberlain departed amid shouts of "go!" and boos from the opposition which all but drowned out the cheers of his supporters.

Packed galleries stood up and gazed in spellbound silence at the dramatic scene below.

DELAWARE DECREASES

COLUMBUS, May 9—The city of Delaware has a population of 8,513, or 162 fewer persons than ten years ago, preliminary figures released by Charles Q. Bloomquist, area census supervisor, revealed today.

Cost of Ohio Campaign Brings Senate Warning

COLUMBUS, May 9 — As candidates prepared today to wind up their campaigns for Democratic and Republican nominations at the primary Tuesday, political leaders pondered reports from Washington of charges that state patronage was being used in the G.O.P. senatorial contests in Ohio.

The charges were disclosed by U. S. Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D) of Iowa, chairman of the senate campaign expenditures investigating committe. He said they they had been filed with the committee, but declined to disclose the source of the allegations.

Apparently referring to the charges, U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey issued a statement in Washington in which he urged his "Ohio friends' 'against voting for political candidates in any party who spend excessively in their campaigns.

At the same time, Donahey reiterated that he was not interested in a return to public office and that he would "refrain as has been my custom from endorsing any candidate on the Democratic primary ticket."

Meanwhile, Congressman Dudley A. White of Norwalk, and Mayor Harold H. Burton, principal opponents for the G. O. P. senatorial nomination, denied the charges. C. E. Wharton, of Kenton, the third contestant, declined comment.

White was in Washington when he heard the charges. He said he knew nothing of the details but would "welcome an investigation."

"It will reveal that we have conducted a senatroial campagin with the most reasonable cost in the last 25 years," White said. "We have even been unable to afford billboards and other accessories of a campaign."

White added that he had "received numerous reports of money being tossed into various counties by the opposition at the rate of so much per precinct." He intimated that the mayor apparently had a substantial amount of patronage in the Cleveland city administration.

Speaking at Marion last night, Burton denied that his followers had any patronage to dispense or that his supporters were responsible for filing the complaint with Gillette.

Gillette said his committee would investigate the charges but that it was unlikely anything would be done before the primary.

In his campaign speech in Marion, Burton urged the nation to adopt a program of "peace through preparedness."

"We can best keep peace by being well-equippel, well trained and adequately manned," Burton said.

Meeting in Columbus, the Franklin County Democratic executive committee voted not to make any recommendations in the seven-man contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Walter F. Heer, chairman of the committee, explained the action with the remark that "we wanted to be fair to everybody."

Previously it had been reported the endorsement would go to former Gov. Martin L. Davey. It was said, however, that Davey's principal opponent, former Gov. George White, also had a number of supporters in the group.

The other candidates in the governor race are former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, former Attorney General Robert S. Duffy, former Congressman-at-Large Harold G. Mosier and James F. Flynn and Frank Dye, attorneys.

From Cleveland, Charles H. Hubbell, candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, continued his "draft-Donahey" for governor campaign by urging voters to write in the senator's name on the ballot.

Donahey has shown no interest in Hubbell's efforts but the latter appeared unperturbed by the senator's indifference. In a telegram to Donahey, Hubbell said that many voters had expressed the hope the former Ohio governor 'would publicly state" before the primary that he would accept the nomination if he received it.

in his power to end the war was embodied in a letter delivered to Mussolini by U. S. Ambassador William Phillips on May 1.

The letter was said to have indicated that Mr. Roosevelt had the support of the Pope and to have asked whether Mussolini was willing to discuss a basis for peace negotiations. Mussolini reportedly told Phillips that he could see no basis for negotiations at this time.

"The report is completely erroneous," said the President's denial, issued by the White House. "It has no basis in fact."

Phillips did confer with Mussolini on May 1. The following day he talked with Italian Foreign Minister Ciano. The same day Prince Ascanio Colonna, Italian ambassador in Washington, requested and received an appointment with the President.

The following day, at a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said this country was striving, as it constantly had before, to prevent further spread of Europe's warfare.

BRITISH INVOKE DEATH PENALTY FOR ESPIONAGE

LONDON, May 9—Stringent measures against pro-German "fifth columnists" in Great Britain—including the death penalty in some instances—were announced in the House of Commons today by Home Secretary Sir John Anderson.

Sir John said the new regulations will include the death penalty in grave cases of espionage and sabotage.

He added that the government was introducing four amendments to existing defense regulations "strengthening the hands of authorities to deal with any possible attempt by the enemy to undermine resistance to any attack on this country."

The House of Comomns formally gave first reading to the bill to "make further provision for trial and punishment of treachery."

Powers given to the government under the new regulations include internment of non-enemy aliens who ordinarily would be deported, but could not be deported owing to circumstances arising from the war.

In a joint order with the supreme command, the Fuehrer dispatched the command to the commander of the Nazi fighting forces in Germany. It read in part.

"In order to show my appreciation . . . I have therefore decided to authorize the liberation of Norwegian soldiers who have been taken prisoners.

"Professional soldiers only must remain in custody until the former Norwegian government has withdrawn its proclamation of war on Germany or until officers and soldiers have given their solemn word of honor not to take part under any circumstances in any further hostile actions against Germany.

PRIME MINISTER RETAINS OFFICE BY TINY MARGIN

will ask the prime minister to form a new ministry.

This action will result in automatic dissolution of the present cabinet, enabling Chamberlain to start anew on the widest possible basis.

Official quarters emphasized, however, that despite the foregoing the situation remains most fluid. The individual reactions of various conservative constituencies throughout the country may ultimately have some bearing on Chamberlain's future course.

Meanwhile, Clement Davies, Laborite, withdrew a motion for the House to reconvene on May 14 instead of May 21 as now scheduled. He and his Labor colleagues agreed to utilize the interim for discussions regarding the future.

Buffeted by two days of invective and angry criticism of his war policies in both the House of Commons and House of Lords, Chamberlain planned to review the situation fully with his cabinet colleagues today, taking full stock of the national uproar caused by the Allied failure in Norway.

Thereafter the prime minister may confer with King George VI, acquainting him with developments and informing the monarch of his decision, if one has been reached.

The Prime Minister omitted his usual stroll in the park today and conferred with Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax before going to the House of Commons. En route he was cheered by 100 spectators gathered in front of his Downing Street residence.

The entire country is waiting avidly to see what Chamberlain will do in this greatest crisis of his career.

His friends, pointing to his admittedly courageous character, said they could not visualize him giving up without further struggle. According to these circles, he may attempt to rally his forces and make a bid for continued leadership with a drastically reconstructed cabinet.

These same quarters also believed that a period of behind-the-scenes maneuvers may be expected before Chamberlain casts the die one way or another.

But opposition Laborites and Liberals jubilantly proclaimed that the House of Commons vote last night—281 to 200 in favor of Chamberlain in an embarrassingly thin vote of confidence—delivered the death blow to the prime minister's political career.

This opinion apparently was shared by most of the British press and a large percentage of members of Chamberlain's own Conservative party.

But at the same time it was recognized that Chamberlain is not a political quitter and will weigh carefully every factor and perhaps fight bitterly in belief his leadership is essential for national unity.

The vote formed the slimmest majority Chamberlain ever has gained on an issue of confidence in his regime, although even smaller majorities have been recorded on domestic side issues. His previous confidence majorities have been in excess of 200 votes, as in the instance of the Czech crisis, when Chamberlain garnered a majority of 222.

In last night's contest, 130 government members of Parliament abstained from voting. Of these 30 were ill and some were serving abroad.

Forty-four Conservative members of Commons voted against Chamberlain, including American-born Lady Astor and all the service members. Lady Astor commented cryptically:

"This is the worst news Hitler has had."

The result of the vote raised a terrific clamor from the opposition benches. Shouts of "resign" echoed through the historic chamber and Laborites started singing "Rule Britannia."

Chamberlain departed amid shouts of "go!" and boos from the opposition which all but drowned out the cheers of his supporters.

Packed galleries stood up and gazed in spellbound silence at the dramatic scene below.

DELAWARE DECREASES

COLUMBUS, May 9—The city of Delaware has a population of 8,513, or 162 fewer persons than ten years ago, preliminary figures released by Charles Q. Bloomquist, area census supervisor, revealed today.

Cost of Ohio Campaign Brings Senate Warning

COLUMBUS, May 9 — As candidates prepared today to wind up their campaigns for Democratic and Republican nominations at the primary Tuesday, political leaders pondered reports from Washington of charges that state patronage was being used in the G.O.P. senatorial contests in Ohio.

The charges were disclosed by U. S. Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D) of Iowa, chairman of the senate campaign expenditures investigating committe. He said they they had been filed with the committee, but declined to disclose the source of the allegations.

Apparently referring to the charges, U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey issued a statement in Washington in which he urged his "Ohio friends' 'against voting for political candidates in any party who spend excessively in their campaigns.

At the same time, Donahey reiterated that he was not interested in a return to public office and that he would "refrain as has been my custom from endorsing any candidate on the Democratic primary ticket."

Meanwhile, Congressman Dudley A. White of Norwalk, and Mayor Harold H. Burton, principal opponents for the G. O. P. senatorial nomination, denied the charges. C. E. Wharton, of Kenton, the third contestant, declined comment.

White was in Washington when he heard the charges. He said he knew nothing of the details but would "welcome an investigation."

"It will reveal that we have conducted a senatroial campagin with the most reasonable cost in the last 25 years," White said. "We have even been unable to afford billboards and other accessories of a campaign."

White added that he had "received numerous reports of money being tossed into various counties by the opposition at the rate of so much per precinct." He intimated that the mayor apparently had a substantial amount of patronage in the Cleveland city administration.

Speaking at Marion last night, Burton denied that his followers had any patronage to dispense or that his supporters were responsible for filing the complaint with Gillette.

Gillette said his committee would investigate the charges but that it was unlikely anything would be done before the primary.

In his campaign speech in Marion, Burton urged the nation to adopt a program of "peace through preparedness."

"We can best keep peace by being well-equippel, well trained and adequately manned," Burton said.

Meeting in Columbus, the Franklin County Democratic executive committee voted not to make any recommendations in the seven-man contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Walter F. Heer, chairman of the committee, explained the action with the remark that "we wanted to be fair to everybody."

Previously it had been reported the endorsement would go to former Gov. Martin L. Davey. It was said, however, that Davey's principal opponent, former Gov. George White, also had a number of supporters in the group.

The other candidates in the governor race are former Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, former Attorney General Robert S. Duffy, former Congressman-at-Large Harold G. Mosier and James F. Flynn and Frank Dye, attorneys.

From Cleveland, Charles H. Hubbell, candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor, continued his "draft-Donahey" for governor campaign by urging voters to write in the senator's name on the ballot.

Donahey has shown no interest in Hubbell's efforts but the latter appeared unperturbed by the senator's indifference. In a telegram to Donahey, Hubbell said that many voters had expressed the hope the former Ohio governor 'would publicly state" before the primary that he would accept the nomination if he received it.

MEDIATION ROLE NOT TAKEN UP, PRESIDENT SAYS

Executive Busy Drafting Vital Address To Be Delivered Friday

in his power to end the war was embodied in a letter delivered to Mussolini by U. S. Ambassador William Phillips on May 1.

The letter was said to have indicated that Mr. Roosevelt had the support of the Pope and to have asked whether Mussolini was willing to discuss a basis for peace negotiations. Mussolini reportedly told Phillips that he could see no basis for negotiations at this time.

"The report is completely erroneous," said the President's denial, issued by the White House. "It has no basis in fact."

Conferences Disclosed

Phillips did confer with Mussolini on May 1. The following day he talked with Italian Foreign Minister Ciano. The same day Prince Ascanio Colonna, Italian ambassador in Washington, requested and received an appointment with the President.

The following day, at a press conference, Mr. Roosevelt said this country was striving, as it constantly had before, to prevent further spread of Europe's warfare.

BRITISH INVOKE DEATH PENALTY FOR ESPIONAGE

LONDON, May 9—Stringent measures against pro-German "fifth columnists" in Great Britain—including the death penalty in some instances—were announced in the House of Commons today by Home Secretary Sir John Anderson.

Sir John said the new regulations will include the death penalty in grave cases of espionage and sabotage.

He added that the government was introducing four amendments to existing defense regulations "strengthening the hands of authorities to deal with any possible attempt by the enemy to undermine resistance to any attack on this country."

The House of Comomns formally gave first reading to the bill to "make further provision for trial and punishment of treachery."

Powers given to the government under the new regulations include internment of non-enemy aliens who ordinarily would be deported, but could not be deported owing to circumstances arising from the war.

In a joint order with the supreme command, the Fuehrer dispatched the command to the commander of the Nazi fighting forces in Germany. It read in part.

"In order to show my appreciation . . . I have therefore decided to authorize the liberation of Norwegian soldiers who have been taken prisoners.

"Professional soldiers only must remain in custody until the former Norwegian government has withdrawn its proclamation of war on Germany or until officers and soldiers have given their solemn word of honor not to take part under any circumstances in any further hostile actions against Germany.

TIGER GOLFERS DEFEAT LIONS

Red And Black Needs One Victory To Tie For SCO Title

Golfers representing Circleville High turned in their best team score of the year Wednesday in defeating the Washington C. H. Blue Lions in a match that ended 8½ to 3½. Washington had defeated the Red and Black by the same score on the Fayette County course, the Wednesday match being contested at the Pickaway Country Club.

The Tigers must meet Wilmington on the local course sometime next week and a victory in this match would put the locals in a tie with Washington for the South Central Ohio League title. In case of a tie the Washington and Circleville golfers will meet at Wilmington to settle the deadline. Since the Red and Black has already defeated Wilmington on its home course a victory here seems almost certain.

Ted Moon and Frank Geib made clean sweeps of their matches against Self and Tillbrook to score three points each, while Johnny Woods won two points and Bob Moon obtained a half.

Scores were:

PERRIN WINS 'TITLE'

NEW ORLEANS, May 9 — Jimmy Perrin of New Orleans today held a 15-round decision over Bobby Ruffin of New York in a bout which was advertised by the Louisiana Athletic Commission as being for the "featherweight championship of the world." Ringsiders gave Perrin eight rounds and Ruffin two, with five even. Perrin outboxed the New Yorker from the start and then had the best of fast punch exchanges in the latter stages. Ruffin provided a constant threat, however, with a two-fisted attack.

Boston Bees Send Sullivan After Second Tilt; Paul Derringer Clubbed

CINCINNATI, May 9—The Cincinnati Reds today had another chance at the Boston Bees, who pounced on three Redleg pitchers yesterday for a 10 to 4 victory.

Bucky Walters was expected to take the mound for Cincinnati today. Sullivan was expected to hurl for the Bees.

Paul Derringer started for the Reds yesterday, but was shelled from the mound in the fifth inning when Boston scored five times. Moore and Hutchings followed him on the hill, but the game was already lost.

Posedel was the Boston pitcher.

Johnny Rizzo, who the Reds yesterday acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates for Vince DiMaggio, was expected to report at Cincinnati today. The young outfielder has long been sought by the Reds.

LONE RUN PUTS BIRDIES DEEPER INTO COAL HOLE

COLUMBUS, May 9 — Firing in the American Association was to be resumed today after a day that saw only one game played, a 7 to 6 encounter in which Milwaukee edged out the Columbus Red Birds.

The loss sank the Birds even lower in the cellar. By its win, Milwaukee got up to the .500 mark and a fourth-place tie with the St. Paul Saints.

700 HI ATHLETES TO TAKE PART IN MIAMI'S RELAYS

OXFORD, May 9 — More than 700 high school athletes will come to the Miami University campus at Oxford over the week end for the university's sixth annual scholastic track and field meet, George L. Rider, director of athletics and manager of the meet, announced today.

Rider said 28 Class A and 31 Class B schools are expected to participate. Defending champion in Class A is Toledo Scott, while Upper Arlington is returning to defend its Class B crown won last year.

TIGER GOLFERS DEFEAT LIONS

Red And Black Needs One Victory To Tie For SCO Title

Golfers representing Circleville High turned in their best team score of the year Wednesday in defeating the Washington C. H. Blue Lions in a match that ended 8½ to 3½. Washington had defeated the Red and Black by the same score on the Fayette County course, the Wednesday match being contested at the Pickaway Country Club.

The Tigers must meet Wilmington on the local course sometime next week and a victory in this match would put the locals in a tie with Washington for the South Central Ohio League title. In case of a tie the Washington and Circleville golfers will meet at Wilmington to settle the deadline. Since the Red and Black has already defeated Wilmington on its home course a victory here seems almost certain.

Ted Moon and Frank Geib made clean sweeps of their matches against Self and Tillbrook to score three points each, while Johnny Woods won two points and Bob Moon obtained a half.

Scores were:

Circleville		Washington
T. Moon 3	Self	0
83	91
R. Moon .. ..½	Willis	2½
86	85
J. Woods 2	Sheeley	1

PROBABLE FIELD ANNOUNCED FOR PIMLICO FEATURE

BALTIMORE, May 9 — A field of ten 3-year-olds may go to the post for the golden jubilee Preakness at Pimlico Saturday.

The three-year-olds that seem certain of starting include:

The Milky Way Farms, Gallahadion, winner of last Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

E. R. Bradley's Bimelech, who finished second.

Arnold Hanger's Dit.

C. S. Howard's Mioland.

W. L. Brann's Pictor.

Tower Stable's Royal Man.

Millsdal Stable's Andy K.

Mrs. George D. Widener's Your Chance.

Mrs. E. G. Lewis' Jacomar.

R. A. Firestone's Marogay.

Three others may be entered in the Maryland turf classis, but at present seem to be on the doubtful list. They are Snow Ridge from the Wheatley stable, Sun Pharos, owned by Mrs. A. Pelletri and John May Whitney's Woof Woof.

Should the first ten go the mile and three-sixteenths for the $50,000 purse, turf fans expected here from all sections of the United States and Canada will see a thrilling setto.

THE HEROES AND THE GOATS

HEROES: Hal Trosky, Indian first baseman, whose 6th and 7th homers helped beat the Yanks; Babe Young, Giants' first baseman, whose four straight hits helped wallop the Pirates.

GOATS: Paul Derringer. Reds' pitcher, who was driven from the box by the lowly Bees; Clyde Smoll, Philly pitcher, who failed to last one inning against the Cardinals.

PERRIN WINS 'TITLE'

NEW ORLEANS, May 9 — Jimmy Perrin of New Orleans today held a 15-round decision over Bobby Ruffin of New York in a bout which was advertised by the Louisiana Athletic Commission as being for the "featherweight championship of the world." Ringsiders gave Perrin eight rounds and Ruffin two, with five even. Perrin outboxed the New Yorker from the start and then had the best of fast punch exchanges in the latter stages. Ruffin provided a constant threat, however, with a two-fisted attack.

OPEN GOES TO TEXAS

NEW YORK, May 9—The 1941 National Open golf championship will be held at the Colonial Club, Fort Worth, Tex., June 5, 6 and 7, the executive committee of the U. S. Golf Association announced today. This year's open has been scheduled for Cleveland, June 6, 7 and 8.

CLAYPOOL VICTORY ASSURED, OBSERVERS PREDICT

Congressman Harold K. Claypool will be renominated as the Democratic candidate for Congress in the eleventh district by a margin of five to one. This is the consensus of independent political observers who have just completed a survey in the district and who state that Mr. Claypool will easily carry each of the five counties that comprise the district, namely Fairfield, Hocking, Perry, Pickaway, and Ross.

These observers base their predictions on the fact that Congressman Claypool has shown himself to be one of the best vote getters ever to run for Congress in this district, and his opponent who has become a perennial candidate, has never finished better than third in the two times he has run for Congress. In 1936 Mr. Claypool was given the largest vote ever cast in this district for a Congressman seeking his first term. In 1938 he was renominated over two candidates by a four to one vote. In the general election he went on to win in the Republican landslide, was the only Democrat to carry the district, and ran more than 10,000 votes ahead of his ticket.

Claypool's record has met with approval throughout his district and most voters reported that the Congressman was stronger than ever before.

Claypool's opponent is making his third bid for the congressional post. In his two other attempts he failed to arouse any popular support and in 1938 received only a few votes in his home county. Many voters contacted in the survey reported that they did not know Congressman Claypool had an opponent.

CLAYPOOL VICTORY ASSURED, OBSERVERS PREDICT

Congressman Harold K. Claypool will be renominated as the Democratic candidate for Congress in the eleventh district by a margin of five to one. This is the consensus of independent political observers who have just completed a survey in the district and who state that Mr. Claypool will easily carry each of the five counties that comprise the district, namely Fairfield, Hocking, Perry, Pickaway, and Ross.

These observers base their predictions on the fact that Congressman Claypool has shown himself to be one of the best vote getters ever to run for Congress in this district, and his opponent who has become a perennial candidate, has never finished better than third in the two times he has run for Congress. In 1936 Mr. Claypool was given the largest vote ever cast in this district for a Congressman seeking his first term. In 1938 he was renominated over two candidates by a four to one vote. In the general election he went on to win in the Republican landslide, was the only Democrat to carry the district, and ran more than 10,000 votes ahead of his ticket.

Claypool's record has met with approval throughout his district and most voters reported that the Congressman was stronger than ever before.

Claypool's opponent is making his third bid for the congressional post. In his two other attempts he failed to arouse any popular support and in 1938 received only a few votes in his home county. Many voters contacted in the survey reported that they did not know Congressman Claypool had an opponent.

Indian Southpaws Make Road Tough For Yanks

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, May 9—This may be a left hander's year in the American League.

The fork-handed gentry already have racked up 20 victories this season and of this number nine have been at the expense of the Yankees, proud pent-house occupants, now currently investigating how the other half lives in the basement.

Yankee stadium has become a pitching paradise for the portsiders. Two more of them showed up yesterday and with the usual result. The Indians trotted out Al Smith and Al Milnar and at the finish the Yanks were on the short end for the fifth straight time, 10 to 4.

Cleveland looked very good. The infield sparkled and all of the Indians powdered the ball. It seems that all the visiting firemen have gotten over the inferiority complex that used to make life soft for the Yanks. In fact, the Indians have developed a superiority slant that bids fair to make life miserable for the Yanks all year.

Hal Trosky led the Cleveland assault with his sixth and seventh homers, good for four runs. And that reminds me he is ahead of Babe Ruth's pace of 1927 when the Bambino hit his 60 homers. That year Ruth didn't get No. 7 until May 10.

The Red Sox picked up another game on our skidding Yanks by nosing out the Tigers, 5 to 4; the surprising Athletics moved into the first division by outslugging the Browns, 10 to 8; adn the White Sox gained a 6 to 3 verdict over the Senators.

The other circuit also had its share of surprises. The Bees, for instance, took their fifth straight by driving Paul Derringer to the showers to trim the Reds, 10 to 4. Bill Posedel was hit fairly hard, but four snappy double plays pulled him out of trouble.

Then, there is the case of the Giants who pounded out 17 hits off five throwers to hand the Pirates their eighth straight defeat, 10 to 6. Any time the Giants make 17 hits off anybody, even Pirate pitchers, that's news.

The Cubs and Dodgers were idle but the Cardinals, now going ahead under full steam, knocked off the Phillies, 7 to 4.
